FIRST BAY STATE RETURNS SHOW

FOSS AND WILSON LEAD

GREAT WILSON VOTE IS CAST IN THE NATION

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Encouraging reports from nearly all the States poured into Democratic national headquarters all day.

From many States came reports that the biggest vote in their history was being polled. Nearly 400,000 of the 700,000 votes in this city had been cast up to noon.

J. D. Hand, Democratic State chairman of New Mexico, wired that Governor Wilson was getting more than an even break there.

Joseph A. Young, a Democratic leader in Utah, wired from Salt Lake City that President Taft was beating Colonel Roosevelt 2 to 1 in that State, which insured a victory for Wilson in the final count.

F. C. Whitten of Portland, Ore., telegraphed that Wilson was getting a heavy vote there, and that the indications were Taft would run third.

E. O. Wood, National Democratic committeeman from Michigan, sent word that Wilson had an even chance in that State.

INDIANA FOR WILSON, SAYS TAGGART.

"Tom" Taggart, National Committeeman from Indiana, telegraphed that the early vote in his State indicates a victory for Wilson. The voting, Taggart said, was the heaviest in years.

Chairman William F. McCombs of the Democratic National Committee issued the following statement:

All our advices received from every State in the Union until 12 noon contain the same glowing reports of a sweeping victory for Wilson and Marshall. Many telegrams have been received from up-State leaders, all showing the success of the New York ticket and the national ticket in this State.

All the other States have reported a heavy early vote.

Reports continued to come into headquarters throughout the early afternoon, all of which were highly optimistic. At that time it was estimated that 50 per cent. of the vote in this city had been cast.

M. J. Rawley, Democratic chairman of Maryland, telegraphed from Baltimore that that city and the State would go for Wilson.

W. R. King, Democratic National Committeeman for Oregon, and Homer F. Cummings, National Committeeman for Connecticut, visited headquarters and gave assurances of a heavy Wilson vote in their home States.

REPORTS FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 5.—The early voting today was the heaviest in the history of West Virginia. The only question was how many more votes Wilson will have than Roosevelt and Taft, according to those who have watched the campaign closely. This State is voting on an amendment providing for State-wide prohibition and the election is the most bitter in the history of the State.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Reports from all sections of this city showed that a heavy early morning vote was polled. Clear skies and a moderate temperature served to bring out the voters. Leaders of all three parties were claiming a majority. Senator Penrose was confident that Taft would receive a majority both in the city and State.

ILLINOIS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—An unusually heavy vote marked the early hours of balloting in Chicago today. When the polls opened at 6 o'clock voters were lined up and waiting to cast their ballots. Returns from various precincts from both North and South Side wards showed that in some cases nearly a fourth of the registered vote was cast before 7 o'clock.

CONNECTICUT.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5.—Reports from all cities and towns indicated a big vote. Considerable difficulty was experienced in the small towns with the blanket ballot, the largest ever placed before the voters. Twelve cities and towns, New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, Waterbury, Meriden, Danbury, New Britain, Stamford, Norwich, Bristol, Torrington and West Hartford, recorded their vote by machines, greatly accelerating the recording of the result.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Election day found Washington deserted by the President and nearly all the members of the Cabinet, as well as approximately 10,000 government employes, who have gone home to vote. Secretary Fisher of the Interior Department, for the first time since his elevation to office, found himself the acting President of the United States for one whole day.

The indications are, however, that the capital tonight will be one of the liveliest

INSISTED THAT TAFT "MUSTER HIM OUT"

CINCINNATI, Nov. 5.—A man who claimed that he had served in the Civil War and "had never been mustered out" made a persistent attempt today to secure admission to the residence of Charles P. Taft, where President Taft is awaiting the nation's verdict. When a maid answered the man's ring at the doorbell he explained that only Mr. Taft could muster him out, and he attempted to push his way through the door. The maid quickly slammed the door in his face and the man disappeared.

GOVERNOR CASTING VOTE

Governor Foss, refreshed by a few hours' sleep after a siege of strenuous campaigning, arrived during the morning hours at the Bowditch School, Green street, Jamaica Plain, the polling place of Precinct 7, Ward 22.

GLOOMY REPORTS AT G. O. P. HEADQUARTERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Early reports received at Republican national headquarters from New England points were of the gloomiest character. State leaders said they could not assure the election of any Republican candidates for Congress, except T. J. Hill of the 4th Congressional District of Connecticut.

Reports from west of the Mississippi river indicated a strong sentiment there for President Taft. Although counting upon the strong "silent vote" the belief grew with the accumulation of telegraphic reports that not more than one hundred Republican congressional candidates could be elected. This belief was based on telegrams received from various State chairmen throughout the United States.

Francis Curtis, manager of the publicity bureau of the Republican National Committee, said he had received definite assurances that G. W. Fairchild of the Thirty-fourth Congressional District of New York, E. D. Crumpacker of the Tenth District of Indiana, the only Republican apparently sure of election to that State; William McKinley of the Nineteenth District of Illinois, Joseph G. Cannon of the Eighteenth District of Illinois, James R. Mann of the Second District of Illinois, J. Hampton Moore of the Third District of Pennsylvania and C. H. Burke of the Second District of South Dakota would all be elected to Congress. Most of these men are members of the national committee and directors of the campaign.

ENGLAND EXPECTS A WILSON VICTORY

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The American election rivalled the Balkan war here today as a matter of popular interest. The newspapers average four columns on the subject today, an unprecedented display of news enthusiasm for the British press over new world politics. Without exception they predicted victory for Wilson and second place for Roosevelt.

WARD 24.

In Ward 24, strongly Republican, the early vote was heavy. There are twelve precincts. Two thousand votes were cast in the first hour. Women workers were at the polls for the Progressives.

SMITH STRAW VOTE SHOWS WILSON LEAD

NORTHAMPTON, Nov. 5.—Smith College girls cast 1,212 ballots in a straw vote for President today, with Wilson leading, but not getting a majority. The vote was: Wilson 551, Taft 317, Roosevelt 314, Debs 26, Chafin 10.

WARD 20.

Women workers for the Bull Moose party were at the polls early in Ward 20. The efforts of the hot campaign were reflected in the tremendous vote in the early hours. The ward has 12,600 voters and sixteen precincts. Two thousand five hundred votes were cast in the first hour.

Precinct 8 polled the heaviest early vote in its history. The count up to 8:15 showed that 330 had voted.

ROOSEVELT AHEAD OF TAFT IN EARLY ELECTION FIGURES

Wilson and Foss led in the first election returns received in Boston at 1:25 this afternoon. The returns came from the town of Revere.

The first 250 ballots counted in Precinct 1, Revere, gave the following results:

National—Wilson 84, Roosevelt 83, Taft 70.

State—Foss 105, Bird 68, Walker 62.

The total vote of Revere in 1908 for President was: Bryan 664, Taft 1324.

The total vote of Revere last year for Governor was: Foss 1201, Frothingham 1057.

Walker Predicts Republican Victory as He Casts Ballot

Joseph Walker, the Republican candidate for Governor, cast his ballot in the Brookline Town Hall at 11:10. He was smiling and very optimistic as to the ultimate results of the election. He said:

"I have gained four pounds during this campaign and my voice has gained strength also. I feel that the vote has kept pace, and I really expect to win."

Mr. Walker arrived this morning from Worcester, where he was campaigning last night, and went directly to the polls. He was greeted with cheering words by a crowd of friends. He said the greatest vote ever cast in the western part of the State was being turned in today.

Tufts Men Vote To Strike Against Pay for "Subjects."

Tufts Medical and Dental freshmen voted to strike today against being charged extra for the use of human cadavers for dissecting purposes.

The extra tariff, just announced, is $9 for a medical student and $6 for a dental one. The extra cost to the "medic" is presumably because he gets more practice out of cadavers than the dental student does.

The freshmen to the number of 200 met in the medical amphitheatre on Huntington avenue and declared a strike, saying they never had to pay before for the dissection subjects.

The high cost of living, the students feel, is bad enough, without having to pay extra for cadavers.

Sunshine and a balmy air, in connection with the tremendous interest in the outcome in the nation and State, brought out an unprecedented vote in this city.

Some friction was reported in the city, mainly because of the aggressiveness of the Progressives. The trouble was chiefly because they insisted on wearing badges to which objection was made. The police were frequently queried as to the law on this matter.

Governor Foss voted at the Bowditch school on Green street, Jamaica Plain at 8:52. He looked confident and happy. He was cheered by groups of school children. This is what the Governor said:

"I was never more confident of re-election."

Guy A. Ham, former Assistant District Attorney, made trouble for an alert Progressive in Precinct 12, Ward 20, near Mt. Bowdoin station, who wore this badge: "Stickers for the Progressive candidate for councillor, Brooks Adams of Quincy." Ham is a Republican. Adams is his op-

TAFT CARRIES ACUSHNET BY HEAVY PLURALITY

The first complete returns from any place in Massachusetts were received today from the town of Acushnet, down Cape Cod way. The vote was as follows:

Roosevelt 50. Taft 104. Wilson 52.

In 1908 the vote was: Bryan 12. Taft 118.

Two precincts in the city of New Bedford were as follows: Precinct 7, Roosevelt 74, Taft 164, Wilson 129. Precinct 13, Roosevelt 93, Taft 195, Wilson 103.

OVERWHELMING VOTE IS CAST FOR WILSON

cities in the United States, despite the fact that none of its residents can vote. In clubs, cafes and hotels telegraph wires have been installed to receive the returns.

MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—Early indications were that Maryland would cast a record-breaking vote today. The weather is ideal. In many precincts of Baltimore over half the total registered vote was cast before 9 a. m. Besides the national ticket the voters of the city are voting for four congressional candidates and three proposed constitutional amendments. In the counties are also voting on congressional tickets.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Early voting in New York city was orderly and rapid, the ballots coming sometimes at the rate of a vote a minute.

The weather was ideal for an election day.

Balloting throughout the five boroughs was so rapid that it was apparent straight tickets were being voted.

When the polls opened at 6 a. m. all the city's police reserves were massed at the various stations, but the usual early calls failed to materialize and the election commissioners declared the election "the quietest ever held in New York."

Reports from the State outside of New York indicated that the vote would be the heaviest ever cast in a national election.

INDIANA.

INDIANPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 5.—With bright, warm weather prevailing voting in Indianapolis and Marion county was heavy and peaceable from the moment the polls opened at 6 o'clock. At every one of the 150 voting places there were from ten to twenty-five men waiting to vote when the polls opened and this condition continued for several hours. The ticket scratching appeared to be general, judging from the time consumed in the booths.

Bums detectives were at most of the voting places watching the interests of the Progressive party, which has no representatives on the election boards.

TENNESEE.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 5.—A heavy vote was cast throughout Tennessee today. The weather was ideal, clear and warm. The country vote was especially heavy. Ten Congressmen are elected, all having Republican opposition except in the Tenth District.

DELAWARE.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 5.—Heavy voting marked the election in Delaware today. The polls opened at 7:30 o'clock and by 9 o'clock half the votes in some districts in this city were polled. The heaviest polling seemed to come by the Republican voters. Indications pointed to Wilson carrying the State by at least 5,000. The election of Byrnes, Democratic nominee for Congress is predicted.

COLORADO.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 5.—Clear, warm weather prevailed over Colorado today and the voting was heavy. It was generally conceded that Wilson would carry this State.

NEW MEXICO.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 5.—New Mexico today voted for the first time as a State in a national election. There was a heavy vote. The weather was fair. President Taft was expected to carry the State.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 5.—Election day opened partly cloudy, with a moderate temperature and springlike air. This resulted in a heavy vote being cast throughout South Dakota. Reports show a very heavy vote.

MICHIGAN.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 5.—There was a record-breaking vote in the State. The weather was ideal.

GEORGIA.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—Voting all over the State indicated record totals. The weather was cloudy and warm. Senator O. A. Bacon, presiding officer of the United States Senate, voted in Macon for Wilson. The Roosevelt workers were very active.

CALIFORNIA.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—A heavy vote was polled in the first hour after the opening of the polls throughout the State. The weather was clear all over California.

ARIZONA.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 5.—Clear weather prevailed throughout the State today. In the first hour Tucson, Yuma and Phoenix reported very heavy early voting.

MISSISSIPPI.

JACKSONVILLE, Nov. 5.—Clear, warm weather prevailed throughout Mississippi, and the signs pointed to the heaviest vote ever cast in this State.

OHIO.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5.—Heavy early voting prevailed throughout this State. From Cincinnati, Cleveland, Akron, Toledo and other cities came reports that the voters were flocking to the polls in large numbers, and one-half of the total vote had been cast at 9 o'clock. The weather was perfect, with a clear sky and slight frost in the atmosphere. The indications during the forenoon were that more than one million votes would be cast.

VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 5.—Crisp weather today served to bring out an enormous vote throughout Virginia, the indications being that Wilson would carry the State by not less than 70,000. Roosevelt was believed to be running second, the old line Republicans having a poor organization in all districts save the Ninth.

NEW JERSEY.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 5.—Reports throughout the State showed a large vote. There was brisk splitting.

WEST VIRGINIA.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 5.—The biggest vote in the history of the State was polled today. There was considerable scratching, but indications pointed to Wilson getting the full electoral vote. The Socialists voted heavily.

WARD 26 (Hyde Park).

A Wilson victory was predicted in Hyde Park, the Democrats basing their claims for victory on the splitting of the usually overwhelming Republican vote by the advent of the Moose party. The Progressives claimed 700 votes. Governor Foss was expected to poll a heavy vote with the thousands of employes from his factory voting almost solidly for him. The Progressives claimed Bird would run well to the front for Governor with Walker third.

Representative Murray faced the fight of his life for a third term against Clarence Wing, Republican and Progressive, but a strong Democratic vote was polled early in the day.

Hyde Park was expected to give Lester P. Winchenbaugh, the Moose candidate for Senator, a big vote, as he is a Hyde Park man, running against Roger Wolcott of Milton, Republican, and John McDevitt of Quincy, Democrat.

Mr. John P. Battigan polled a heavy vote for Governor's Council. Guy Ham was the Republican candidate.

SOUTH BOSTON WARDS.

A big vote was polled early today in the South Boston wards, 13, 14, 15 and 16, notwithstanding the fact that few workers were at the polls. Taft was expected to poll a large vote. James B. Connolly, the Bull Moose candidate for Congress against Congressman Curley, is strong in the whole district.

In Ward 16, Precinct 2, 137 votes were cast in the first hour; in Precinct 3, 163 votes were cast.

WILSON VOTES STRAIGHT TICKET

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5.—Governor Wilson voted ballot No. 112. He was in the voting booth at the polling place in the firehouse in Chambers street from 10:50 to 10:54 o'clock. He voted the straight Democratic ticket from Presidential electors down to the candidate for Assembly. The Governor was accompanied to the polls by his bodyguard, Captain "Bill" McDonald, and by his secretary, Walter Meanley. The Governor left his home at 10:30 o'clock and walked briskly to the polls.

He had not gone far when he became inspired with song and broke into the strains of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching." He sang sufficiently in the best of spirits. Passing a small frame house, he said:

"When I was a freshman I used to take my meals in that house. One night I got a bubble in my throat and had to jump off that platform twelve times to pull it out, and then it wouldn't come out. I had to get it out with my finger."

There was a big group of photographers at the polling place and there was a perfect fusilade of snapshots as the Governor entered the place.

"Good morning, Governor," shouted the election inspectors and tellers in chorus.

"Good morning," replied the Governor.

The three voting booths were all occupied when the Governor entered the polling place, and he was forced to wait his turn before casting his ballot.

It was several minutes before a man came out of one of the booths, and Wilson had.

The Governor entered the booth and remained there but four minutes. When he came out and said, "I had some trouble in finding the Democratic presidential electors.

The Governor posed for the photographers as he stood beside the ballot box in the act of dropping in his ballot. These pictures will show the pink plaster covering the three-inch gash on the Governor's head, for he had his hat in his hand.

As the Governor left the polling place he met many Princeton friends who stopped and shook hands with him, congratulating him in advance on his election to the Presidency. The Governor then went home and was joined there by William G. McAdoo and Josephus Daniels of the National Committee, who had arrived at 10:08. Mr. Daniels is going back to Lovell Carding tonight or tomorrow.

THESE STATES ARE TO ELECT SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Legislatures in the following States will elect Senators to succeed those whose terms of service expire on March 3, 1913: Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado (two), Delaware, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Illinois (two), Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon (primary), Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Wyoming.

LYNN.

Lynn for Wilson and Foss by 1,000 votes was the prediction of Democratic leaders in that city today. By 9 o'clock more than half of the total registration of 17,000 voters had been cast, and it was largely a Democratic vote at that.

Ex-Representative Michael F. Phelan, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Seventh District, and Frederick T. Bennett, Jr., the Republican candidate, had a hot fight.

WINTHROP.

Winthrop voted today for the first time in the new Ninth Congressional District. This is Congressman Roberts' district, and he faced a hard fight with Henry C. Lawland of Somerville, the Democratic candidate, and John Herbert, Progressive, out against him.

BROOKLINE.

Brookline was up early today and at 10 o'clock more than 60 per cent. of the vote had been cast. The Republicans and Progressives were making every effort to get out the vote. Automobiles and carriages conveyed the voters to the polls. It was believed that the heaviest vote in the history of the town would be recorded.

WARD 10.

The voting was heavy in Ward 10. Up to 9 o'clock 248 ballots had been cast in Precinct 7 on Huntington avenue. The polls were surrounded by a large crowd when they opened at 6 o'clock, and this steadily increased.

COLONEL BUSY AT THE PHONE

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Nov. 5.—"The fight's over. Now we'll see what comes of it."

That was Colonel Roosevelt's comment today at Sagamore Hill when asked how he felt about his prospects at the poll. The Ex-President was in radiant humor after the half day of campaigning yesterday, winding up with the rousing meeting last night in the village opera house.

Roosevelt was up early, and after breakfast went into his library to talk to George W. Perkins over the telephone. Mr. Perkins told the Colonel of the plans to prevent fraud at the polls in New York city. The Ex-President expressed satisfaction that under the direction of William J. Burns and William T. Jerome every precaution is being taken. At 10 o'clock Colonel Roosevelt dictated some letters and an editorial for the magazine for which he writes.

Roosevelt's appearance at the engine house in the village to cast his vote for the Bull Moose party was eagerly awaited by a large crowd of villagers. The engine house is a few miles from Sagamore Hill. Although the Colonel did not personally register, his fellow townsmen saw that he have went down on the registry list.

Colonel Roosevelt cast his vote at noon. The Colonel was in the booth two minutes, but he wore a grin when he emerged which said plainly that he had voted the Bull Moose ticket from top to bottom.

The great length of time was taken because there were four ballots for each voter here, in addition to the national ticket. These four ballots related to local issues. As Colonel Roosevelt has not paid much attention to Oyster Bay affairs in the campaign he took his time in pondering over them at the polls.

The Colonel accompanied by all the voters on his estate, left Sagamore Hill shortly before noon. The Colonel arrived at the polling place at 12:05, entered the booth at 12:10 and emerged at 12:20.

Two automobiles carried the Roosevelt party from Sagamore Hill. The Colonel sat on the front seat of the first car beside the chauffeur, George Morrison. Behind him were two Burns detectives and another guard was seated in the second car.

Joseph French, a clerk, called out "good luck to the Bull Moose" as the Colonel entered the voting place.

"Thanks," responded the former President with a wide grin.

"Do you want to enroll?" asked A. J. Hutchinson, another clerk.

"Sure," responded the Colonel.

The Colonel took the ballot which was handed to him, scanned it a moment, then handed it back remarking, "I guess I cannot do anything with that."

The clerk took it and saw he had made a mistake. He had given the Colonel a special ballot containing no place for a Bull Moose vote.

Colonel Roosevelt's ballot was number 204. A Long Island fisherman had preceded him and a coachman followed him.

Just as the Colonel was dropping his ballot into the box the assembled photographers fired a flash light.

"Another bull Moose shot," cried some one.

"Last call for the barbecue tonight," replied the ex-President. Before going the Colonel spoke a few words to the reporters.

"I hung it on Senator Root last night," said he. "These corporation lawyers are now and always have been standing against the things which the people want and the Progressive party stands for. They don't care."

CAMBRIDGE.

In Cambridge there was a tremendous rush to vote. The Democrats predicted a walkover owing to the splitting of the Republican vote by the advent of the Bull Moose ticket. Autos lined up ready for use started off like a shot at the first clang of the election bell and everyone who could possibly be brought out was borne to the polls.

In the Second and Third Middlesex Districts the Moose leaders declared they expected to cut into the usual big Republican vote and sweep the districts. The First Middlesex in East Cambridge was believed to be going Democratic.

The hardest fight was in the Second Middlesex District with Professor Albert Bushnell Hart on the Moose ticket fighting his former pupil at Harvard, Senator Harry M. Stearns, the Republican candidate for reelection, and Morris M. Lynch, Democratic.

A red-hot fight is on in Cambridge over the congressional nominees from the Eighth District, with all three Cambridge men. They are Henry C. Lenz, Progressive; Frederick W. Dallinger, Republican, and Frederick S. Dietrick, Democratic.

TAFT GOLFS AFTER VOTING

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 5.—President Taft got down early today to the little polling precinct in his home town to cast his ballot. Later he went out on the golf links until the returns began to come in.

President Taft found the city in the doldrums, as far as G. O. P. sentiment went. In contrast to former elections, on the night before there was comparatively little public interest manifested. The bands, parades and colored fire of elections up to four years ago were lacking.

President Taft spent the final day before election in a leisurely trip across his home State, addressing crowds in more than a dozen cities.

The Democrats ended their long campaign in the State with a final rally in Toledo, the Republicans and Progressives having finished their efforts Saturday night. Leaders of each of the parties are making claims of victory today.

WARD 1.

In Ward 1, East Boston, the big fight of the day was between Thomas J. Ghilin, Benjamin Sullivan, the present Representative, George Procopakis, Republican, and E. A. Whitehouse, Progressive.

The voting started with a rush, and a big Democratic vote was indicated. Leaders declared that the ward would go strongly Democratic and that Wilson would get a large majority there, with Foss running strong.

WARD 6.

The voting in Ward 6, the old North End ward, started at a moderate pace. Bull Moose workers were active.

WARD 7.

Ward 7 started out to poll a heavy vote, and the returns from Precincts 3, 4 and 6 indicated a record. One hundred and twenty-five votes were cast in Precinct 3 up to 9 o'clock. The records of past elections show an average of 400 votes for the entire day. Precinct 4, on Shawmut avenue, showed about eighty-five votes up to 9 o'clock, and Precinct 6, on Tyler street, over fifty. Precinct 1, on Devonshire street, showed only fifteen votes, but the vote here is the heaviest at noon.

WARD 8.

Up to the noon hour a record-breaking vote had been cast in Ward 8. The Democratic voters were out in force. Representative Martin Lomasney directed the work of his lieutenants from the headquarters of the Hendricks' Club.

WARD 9.

Ward 9 voters started in at the rate of one a minute. At 9 o'clock 162 ballots had been cast in Precinct 1. This was 50 per cent larger than the State vote for this precinct at the corresponding hour last year.

WARD 11.

Ward 11 in the Back Bay began to vote in a way that showed the wealthy voters had been properly prodded up to their election duty. In one precinct 170 votes were cast by 9 o'clock. This was over one-half the total vote cast at that polling place two years ago. There was a line of automobiles and taxis was at the polling place.

WARD 16.

Voting started with a rush in Ward 16 during the opening hour. Automobiles and other vehicles were pressed into service in getting out the voters. Daniel Chapman, Democratic House candidate, looked after the Washington Village section, and Representative John F. McCarthy, up for reelection, the Dorchester section. They predicted a Democratic sweep. On the other hand, Alfred Ray Mitchell, Republican House candidate, felt certain of winning because of the independent candidacy of Representative John D. McGivern, who was defeated for renomination in the Democratic primaries. Mitchell said Taft would give Wilson a close run in the ward, and prophesied that Joseph Walker, Republican candidate for Governor, would poll a big vote.

Precinct 5 cast eight-six votes up to 9 o'clock. This was considered heavy.

WARD 23.

Voting started off with a rush in the Democratic Precinct 2 of Ward 23, with 137 votes cast up to 7 a. m. In Precinct 1, the Republican precinct, there were only thirty-three votes cast in the same time. Indications pointed to a big Democratic vote.

DEMOCRATS AT POLLS EARLY

ponent. She law permits a worker to have stickers to be placed on the official ballot, but no placards.

Workers Start Early.

Election workers got up by the light of the stars. Their automobiles hummed along with the rattle of the milk man's wagon. In many polling places 100 votes had been cast when the first hour had passed.

A unique scene, for Boston, took place in Chinatown. Chinese friends of Charles Shoe, Republican candidate for the House of Representative in the Seventh District, did a good job of electioneering. Wearing smiles that were childlike and bland they approached voters with this plea:

"Melican man give Mr. Sloe (Shoe) vote. Glood man!"

Shoe's Democratic opponent is John L. Donovan. Donovan said he was not worried about the activity of his competitor.

In Boston, as in New England and in the rest of the country, the voters were confronted with a situation which has not developed in recent political history. With three presidential candidates, Wilson, Roosevelt and Taft, in the field, each with a great popular following, the effect was to tax the election machinery of the country to the uttermost.

The contest was generally regarded as the most momentous and unique presidential election in a decade.

In Massachusetts the indications were strong that Wilson would win and Governor Foss would be re-elected, in other New England States, just as in Massachusetts, it looked as if the split in the Republican ranks due to the third party fight would result in big Democratic victories generally.

Massachusetts was expected to poll a record percentage of its 603,953 registered voters. The fight of Governor Foss to carry the entire Democratic State ticket and a Democratic Legislature along to victory with himself, lent interest to the balloting. The fight in the Congressional districts was also active, Governor Foss having campaigned actively for the Democratic candidates in all the districts.

Should the Bull Moose poll more votes than the Republican party in Massachusetts, then the Republican party will be confronted by the question of going out of business.

Changeable Weather Robbed of Its Terrors for Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuritis

Nurito has absolutely removed changes in weather from consideration—for now is always shining for those who have learned its effective power.

It would be almost criminal to deceive a sufferer from rheumatism, sciatica or neuritis, bent and twisted with pain—to tell him you could relieve him, then take his money and disappoint him. Nurito is a scientific preparation—not a patent medicine or a doctor's prescription—not a tablet nor a powder. If we had not actual proof that it is an antidote for uric acid poisoning, which is responsible for these diseases, we would not have enough for it as we do.

We know from our own investigation that it will relieve a vast majority of cases of rheumatism, sciatica and neuritis, and we guarantee it to do so. Nuritic, uricacidin, opiates and other harmful ingredients.

Name Fraudulently Used to Swing Votes, Says Postmen's Head

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—William R. Kelly, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers of the United States, today learned his name had been fraudulently used in a plot to try to force the postmen of the country to vote the Bull Moose ticket. As soon as Mr. Kelly learned of this, he issued a warning that his name had been fraudulently used and warned postmen to pay no attention to those trying to get them to vote for the Bull Moose candidates.

Mr. Kelly learned letters had been sent to letter carriers from Boston attacking the Democratic civil service policy. He could not discover the authors of this fraudulent scheme. The following statement was issued by him:

Letters mailed to postal employes alleged to have been sent by me, attacking the Democratic party and its civil service policy and requesting employes to vote the Progressive ticket, are a fraud.

(Signed) WILLIAM R. KELLY, President N. A. L. C. U. S.

10 TO 1 ON WILSON, 25 TO 1 AGAINST TAFT, LAST BETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—$1,000 to $100 on Wilson to win was the closing bet in Wall Street. The Wilson end was taken by a prominent member of the New York Stock Exchange. One bet of $25,000 to $1,000 against Taft was placed.

It had been expected a large amount of Roosevelt money would make its appearance on the closing day, but it failed to materialize.

On the Stock Exchange, besides the $25,000 to $1,000 bet, another of $20,000 to $1,000 was made that President Taft would not be re-elected. These were the longest odds ever quoted on the Stock Exchange against a presidential candidate.

Women Help Get Out Progressive Vote in Brockton

BROCKTON, Nov. 5.—Women, working for the Progressive party, took an active interest in today's election in this city. They rushed around in automobiles, acted as checkers at the polling places, helped to "get out the vote," and boosted the Bull Moose candidates discreetly.

Much work was done by the women for Eldon B. Keith, Progressive candidate for State treasurer. One of the chief women workers was Mrs. Charles S. Millet, wife of Dr. Charles S. Millet, a Roosevelt presidential elector. Mrs. Millet used her own automobile. Other busy women were Miss Anna H. McCarthy, Mrs. Joseph Mandeville, Mrs. Edward W. Packard, Mrs. Augusta Norling, Miss Helen Keith, Miss Etta L. Jacobs, Mrs. George L. Davis, Miss Sadie Baxendale, Mrs. D. E. Brown, Mrs. E. T. Simpson and Mrs. Fred Goodridge.

HITCHCOCK CASTS VOTE IN NEWTON

Postmaster-General Frank Hitchcock cast his ballot shortly after 9 o'clock in Ward 3, Newton. He motored from his home, No. 175 Temple street. Charles E. Hatfield, chairman of the Republican State Committee and a resident of Newton, was at the booth early and predicted Republican success. "It is our kind of weather and we ought to win. I think Congressman Weeks will be returned by a plurality of 2,500," he remarked.

THINK THOMAS HAS FOUND A PREACHER

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 5.—Deputy Sheriff Frank King, a friend of Edward Russell Thomas, rushed through the city this afternoon in an automobile, accompanied by a man in clerical attire who was said by observers to be the Rev. Joseph Lambert of Providence, who performed the Astor-Force marriage. This immediately gave rise to speculation whether Mr. Lambert had been engaged to marry Mr. Thomas to Miss Elizabeth H. Pinley, the New York artist. The search by Mr. Thomas for a minister to officiate at his second marriage has been much discussed.

Wife Electioneers for Boston Author-Athlete Wins Many Ballots for James B. Connolly

Accosts Voters Smilingly Just Outside 100-Foot Line from Booth in Ward 20.

Election day in precinct six of Ward Twenty had an "added feature" as they say in vaudeville, in the attractive person of Mrs. "Jimmy" Connolly.

She did effective work for her husband, James B. Connolly, the authoreditor, who was Progressive candidate in the Twelfth Congressional District, running against Congressman "Jim" Curley.

Mrs. Connolly arrived at the Precinct 6 polling place, the Benjamin Cushing School on Robinson street, at 7 o'clock. She may have had to give the housewom "a lick and a promise," he women express it, but she was there at seven, a striking figure in black corduroy velvet, with black velvet hat trimmed with a white plume. A light veil covered, but did not conceal, her brunette comeliness.

First Mrs. Connolly went down in the polling room in the school building to see if the other Progressive women who had promised to be there were there as checkers. They were not on hand.

Checkers Are Gallant.

Mrs. Connolly wanted to be outside to electioneer for "Jimmy." But she wanted the checking seen to. She frowned a little and Michael Driscoll, a Democratic checker, and big Republican Companius asked Mrs. Connolly what was bothering her. She explained and they said gallantly:

"You go right ahead with your outside work and you can check off from our books when you get ready."

Mrs. "Jimmy" smiled, thanked them and hurried out. Taking a position safely outside the 100-foot danger line Mrs. "Jimmy" stopped the first voter approaching, with: "Just a moment, please."

This solicitation, especially when delivered in a pleasant feminine voice, will stop any man who is not blind or deaf. Then Mrs. "Jimmy" went on:

"Would you kindly give my husband, Mr. James B. Connolly, a vote for Congress. He's on the Progressive ticket."

When the men came out some would say, in passing her: "Well, I gave 'Jimmy' a vote."

"Thank you very much," was the earnest, smiling reply of Mrs. Jimmy."

Hates to Stop for Lunch.

She wasn't going to quit for lunch at all. But "Dan" McNamara of Westville street, a Democrat, but an elbow-cousin of "Jimmy," came along and said

"Nonsense, Mrs. Connolly, you've got to stop and eat. You come down to the house for lunch, if only for a bite."

Mrs. "Jimmy" went along with McNamara, but if didn't seem more than ten minutes before she was back, putting in her soft words for "Jimmy" every chance she got. Mrs. "Jimmy" explained her politics thus:

"Naturally, I am interested in the Progressive party. But the thing I want most is to see Jimmy win. I want to carry this precinct for him."

Where was "Jimmy" all this time, while his wife was electioneering at Precinct 6 polls? Hustling all over the big ward, getting out all the voters he could for his party and himself.

STATE POLICE WATCH POLLS

Acting under instructions from Governor Foss, General Jophanus H. Whitney, chief of the State police, today directed his men in the various districts to watch for evidence of the illegal use of money at the polls.

Governor Foss in his order to General Whitney said:

I have received reports to the effect that attempts are to be made to debauch the electorate. According to a message delivered to me by Thomas P. Gilby, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, reports have been submitted to him from organization men all over the State to the effect that Republicans are ready to spend a vast sum of money in the various congressional and legislative districts to secure the election of their candidates.

Therefore, I believe it advisable and in the best interests of the State that provisions be made to safeguard against any violations of the corrupt practices act, dealing with elections in this State.

MISS ROACH HELD FOR GRAND JURY AS KIDNAPER

Miss Louise M. Roach was held in $3 for the grand jury by Judge Burke in tom Municipal Court today on a charg kidnaping five-year-old Edward Yates, of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Yates of No. Lynde street. Miss Roach waived exa nation. She kept a handkerchief p to her eyes during the hearing.

Miss Roach is the twenty-four-year girl who was arrested at Portsmouth, H., with the Yates boy in her possess A general alarm had been sent out to police of New England.

Awful Glad to Be Home.

Meanwhile "Eddie" Yates is "aw glad to be home again with mamm Safe in his mother's arms again he s today:

I am awful glad to be home agai with my mamma. I like her muc bettere than the other lady. But the other lady was nice, too. She gave me lots of nice things. I think I liked her, too.

She used to give me black water to drink (the police believe it was wine). It used to give me a headache. When I got a headache she'd rub white stuff on my forehead and then put me to sleep.

Asked whether he remembered meeting anyone else besides Miss Roach while in the latter's apartments, Eddie said:

Yes, I met Benny, too. Benny was nice to me. He was a black man. Yes, he was very nice. He used to play with me and give me lots of nice candy.

But I am awful glad to be home. I am sorry that they cut off my curls. The lady said that they were too long, that they made me look too much like a girl.

The little fellow was attired in a neat fitting blue suit, which he said "the strange lady" had bought him.

Mrs. Arthur Yates, the lad's mother, told the reporter that when he awoke today he jumped out of his bed and climbed into hers, threw his arms around her neck and kissed her, saying:

"Oh, mamma, dear, mamma. I am so glad to be home again."

The mother also said that when the little fellow got home last night he didn't know his name. The police are of the opinion, in this connection, that Miss Roach had given the little fellow another name and had instructed him to use that fictitious name instead of his own.

Captive Makes Two Requests.

When Miss Roach was brought back to Boston and placed in the House of Detention she had just two requests to make to the police.

The first was to the police officials:

"Don't tell my mother of this, for God's sake," she sobbed.

The second was to the mother of the kidnaped boy:

"Forgive me—he was such a beautiful child I could not help taking him," she pleaded.

Mrs. Yates could not resist the woman's plea. What mother could, when her baby was called "such a beautiful child" if that were not enough, here was Edward, snuggling in her arms, dressed in new clothes from head to foot, and hugging to his breast a great Teddy bear almost as large as himself. Mrs. Yates readily forgave Miss Roach.

But the girl's mother, Mrs. Margaret Violante, of No. 55½ Allen street, West End, will read of her daughter's act in the papers, in spite of the girl-kidnaper's plea.

Here is the kidnaper's story, just as she told it to the police:

I came originally from North Carolina, but I have been working in Portsmouth, N. H., for some time. Thursday I was in Boston visiting my mother, when at the corner of Greene and Lynde streets I caught sight of little Edward. He was playing with several other youngsters. Suddenly he ran over to me and boffing a playard up in front of my face, said "read my sign."

The handsome face of the child and his sunny hair and winning way won my heart and I clasped him in my arms.

Then he said "Have you any cats or dogs?" and I replied, "Why, certainly, I have lots of them."

"Well, can I see them?" he then asked, and I said, yes.

It was then the desire to take the boy seized me, and I was unable to resist it.

We walked up to Scollay square and I bought Edward a big white Teddy bear and some toys. Then we had something to eat and the child seemed very much pleased and contented.

We took a train for Portsmouth and when we got there I bought the child a new outfit—a hat, a blue suit, shoes, stockings and a coat and he looked so cute I could have eaten him.

I took him home with me and we were having a glorious time when I read in the Sunday papers of the grief of Mrs. Yates.

Then I realized I had done something wrong and decided to take the boy back. I never intentrated the boy. I wouldn't for the world. I took him because I fell in love with him and I'm sorry.

The missing child was discovered in Portsmouth, as a result of the newspaper stories of the case.

On Thursday afternoon Miss Roach arrived at the boarding house of Benjamin Blake on State street in Portsmouth, N. H., and engaged as a housekeeper.

She had been at Blake's home before, and he, knowing that she was not married, became interested in the child at once. He questioned Miss Roach, and she informed him that the boy was a child of a relative.

Eddie Yates, five years old, and his mother, Mrs. Arthur Yates, of No. 66 Lynde street, West End. "I'm awful glad to be home, mamma," he said on waking today.

Important Sale Which Begins At Our Store Tomorrow

At $12.50 For Suits and Overcoats worth $18

At $15.00 For Suits and Overcoats worth $22.50

At $18.00 For Suits and Overcoats worth $28

This sale is the result of a fortuitous circumstance. Our woolen buyer visited a mill on quite a different errand. Could we use a quantity of woolens remaining of his fall weaving, if he made the price low enough, was the question asked by the woolen maker. He was weaving summer goods at that moment, and wanted to dispose of his overplus of Fall goods and readily made a big sacrifice in order to accomplish his purpose.

The one drawback to this, however, was that the yardage in this lot was only enough to make up some five hundred garments. So we visit other mills in quest of surplus stocks, and our enterprise soon yielded us enough yardage to make up nearly 2000 Suits and Overcoats.

That, briefly, is the story of this sale. These garments will go like a house on fire. We don't think this, we KNOW it. Values like these, at this early period of the season are like a pretty girl with money—they don't go begging.

The following well known mills have contributed to this event:

The American Woolen Company, New York
Cyril Johnson Woolen Company, New York
Holmes & Long Woolen Company, New York
Coleman, Mackay & Gutman Co., New York
J. P. Stevens & Company, New York

Every garment in this collection is tailored with characteristic Hilton thoroughness. No one who takes the trouble to examine them can help but be struck with the distinctiveness of their style and perfection of their fit.

BULGARS BOMBARDING TCHATSLJA

BUCHAREST, via Kustendje, from Constantinople, Nov. 5.—The Bulgarians are reported to have attacked the Turkish forts at Tchatalja, the main defences of Constantinople, twenty-five miles from the city, at dawn today. It is reported that artillery fire can be heard in the northern suburbs of the capital.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Great Britain is reported to be mobilizing her entire fleet as a result of the Balkan situation. There was great activity at the Admiralty office today. It is believed that First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill has given orders to have every available ship of war owned by the Kingdom placed in commission.

SOFIA, Nov. 5.—The last of the heights dominating the main defences of Adrianople were captured by General Paprikoff's Bulgarian soldiers today. A heavy bombardment of the city was at once begun from all quarters and its fall is now only a matter of time.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Dispatches from Sofia and Belgrade today, relayed from the front, indicate that another great battle is imminent.

This time the armies will clash at the very gates of Constantinople. A victory for the allies means the expulsion of the Turks from Europe—or from all Europe except Constantinople. It is the decisive battle of the war.

Today the rival armies are taking their positions. The Turks are scurrying into the forti ations at Tchatalja. The Bulgarians, fiercely pursuing, have halted to bring up artillery and stored for the attack.

The Powers will not intervene. So much is considered certain. At the first suggestion of such a thing, Bulgaria protested strongly. The Powers were forced to admit that the overwhelming victory of the allies warranted their demand that they only should dictate terms of peace.

Turk Pleads for Non-Combatants.

MONTENEGRIN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Podgoritza, Nov. 5.—Scores of Christians, men, women and children have been killed by bursting shells in Scutari, and today General Essed Pacha, the Turkish commander, sent, under a white flag, a request that the Montenegrins direct their firing away from the districts in which non-combatants have taken refuge.

Fear Fall of Young Turks.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 5.—The downfall of the young Turk regime, after four years, is threatened. Followers of Abdul Hamid, the Sultan deposed in favor of Mehemmed V., his brother, are active. Mutiny is imminent in the army corps here. The troops are disaffected. They are ill-clad and ill-fed. The influx of wounded soldiers from the scene of fighting continues. Over 15,000 wounded Turkish soldiers are now in Constantinople.

Christians Massacred.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 5.—The holy war preached by the Mohammedan priests over since Montenegro opened hostilities against Turkey, is now bearing fruit in the massacre of isolated bands of Christians. Many foreign refugees are flocking into Beirut and other cities along the coast of Asia Minor.

Second Warship Blown Up.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 5.—The Turkish steamship Chanler has been blown up in the Black Sea by a mine, with a loss of forty-two lives.

RUSSIA'S CHANCE IN TURK DEFEAT, SAYS SHUSTER

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—In the triumph of the Balkan Powers over Turkey, W. Morgan Shuster, some time treasurer-general of Persia, sees Russia's opportunity to hasten the proclamation of her sovereignty over Persia, a sovereignty which, according to Mr. Shuster, has for months existed in fact, if not in appearance, to the outside world. Mr. Shuster's information is that Russia had been quietly filling up the country with her own troops, until now there is a force there big enough to cope with any situation.

"It can readily be seen that it is to Russia's advantage, and her policy, to have the Balkan States successful," said Mr. Shuster. "In other words, she can fish better in troubled waters.

"So long as Europe is embroiled over these difficulties Russia can pursue her near Eastern and far Eastern policies practically unhindered. Turkey has always been considered the military force of the Moslem nations, and has heretofore exercised some influence on the Persian situation, because of her supposedly strong army. That influence has, however, now largely disappeared."

DANGER OF A MOB OUTBREAK INCREASES IN CONSTANTINOPLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 5 (by indirect route).—The situation in Constantinople grows graver every day. Hostility to European increases and is shown more openly and arrogantly as the days pass.

The lower classes express their fierce animosity without any attempt at concealment.

Some workmen's guilds openly boast that they have taken a sacred vow to massacre every Christian in Constantinople, should the Bulgarians enter the city, or should Roumelia be severed from Turkey.

Fanatics swear on the Koran to take terrible vengeance upon the "infidel."

Theological students, always a dangerous element, are now preaching incendiarism to the mobs in the out-of-the-way mosques.

HITCHCOCK TALKS OF PARCELS POST

Postmaster-General Hitchcock, who came from Washington to vote, called on Postmaster Mansfield and discussed the parcels post. A committee, of which Chief Postoffice Inspector Sharpe is chairman, has been at work on the details. There will be distinctive stamps, of a reddish shade, of denominations from one cent to $1. The size will be an inch by an inch and a half. The pictures will indicate the growth of the postal service, one representing a clerk at work, another a letter-carrier, another the rural free delivery. The postmaster-general expects that eventually the government will own its own equipment, insuring uniformity of service and economy. The new system will tend to lighten the burden of the letter-carriers, as all heavy mail will be delivered by the parcels post equipment.

SECRET TESTS FOR 'DAKOTA'

Dakota Dan resumed the witness stand in the East Cambridge court today with the firm belief that his long cross-examination would be finished when court adjourned at 1 o'clock. This was the fortieth day of the claimant's examination by Robert Nason, counsel for the Russell estate.

Further "secret tests," consisting of showing him articles with which it was thought the real Daniel Blake Russell would be familiar, taken from the Russell house, were attempted, but Dakota Dan declined to identify any of them. Some of the articles, he said, looked like things he had when a boy, but that was so long ago it was all very hazy in his memory.

Among the articles shown Dakota Dan were photographs of the Russeau family, a newspaper article which appeared in the Messina Observer on August 26, 1900. This article purported to relate the death of Louis Russeau.

Remembers Mr. Fletcher.

Q.—Were you recognized by a blind singer in the St. Paul's hotel in Dickinson, North Dakota? A.—I don't ever remember of such a thing.

Q.—Did you know a man named Fletcher in Melrose? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was he a musician or a singer? A.—I think he played a violin. Q.—Was Mr. Fletcher blind? A.—Not that I know of.

Dakota Dan was then questioned by Attorney Nason regarding several long trips made by Senator Russell. Among these were trips to Chicago, California and Cuba.

The witness said that he remembered his father went to California on an excursion, also that he went to Chicago. He did not remember of ever hearing about a trip to Cuba. He added that his father was frequently accompanied by his mother on trips that lasted for several weeks and sometimes months.

"I didn't know where they went because I did not follow them and they seldom told me where they had been. They sometimes brought back souvenirs, but these were only small trifles and I have forgotten what they were." Dakota Dan said that his father belonged to a Masonic order and to the Universalist Church. He also recalled that he was a member of the Melrose Russell Club, and a whist club which he did not think has any other name except whist club.

"When I came back, I saw Mr. Curtis, who worked on the Russell estate, and he said that my mother asked before she died what would become of the property when William C. Russell died. Some one said that the missing heir would then turn up. Mr. Hooper, father-in-law of Almy, remarked that the missing heir would have a hard time proving his identity. So, just see, the Almys were then preparing to fight me although I had been gone only thirteen years."

SHOWER GOLD ON DORCHESTER BRIDE

Three hundred and seventy five-dollar gold pieces, totalling $1,850, were showered on Gladys L. Weld, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Weld of No. 12 Penniman street, Dorchester, and Arthur L. Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall S. Rice of No. 93 Winchester street, Brookline, Harvard, '05, at their wedding reception held at the bride's home. They will live in Yokatan.

ARRAIGN SWIFT IN ANTI-TRUST CASE

George H. Swift, Horatio W. Heath and the Consolidated Rendering Company, all of Boston, will be arraigned in the United States District Court tomorrow on indictments charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust act in connection with rendering business of New England. United States District Attorney French will ask for bail of $5,000 each.

"FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE A BLESSING TO EVERY HOME—IT CURED MY CHILDREN"

"I send my children's pictures to you, hoping their experience will be of benefit to other little ones suffering from bronchitis. I have tried a great many remedies, but none so good as Father John's. It is a blessing to every home." (Signed) Mrs. Theo. Dupie, 7 Mill St., Troy, N. Y.

When the children have a cold or cough or when they need a tonic, mothers should be careful never to give them anything containing alcohol or dangerous drugs. Because it does not contain these drugs or alcohol in any form, Father John's Medicine is a safe medicine to give the children. Thousands of mothers use it in their homes right along. It has a history of 50 years of success in the treatment of coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles, as well as a tonic and body builder. "THE CONCERT" AT HOLLIS ST.

Like the piling up of votes to the candidates is "The Concert" to the heart of the jaded playgoer. There is in the bright comedy the sparkle of the cup that cheers but not inebriates, and to show just how pleasing a show it was, a splendid audience at the Hollis street theatre enjoyed it from curtain to curtain.

It wasn't the first curtain-going-out bow of the play in Boston. As they say of the debutantes, it "came out" last season. Boston playgoers enjoyed it to the fill then, and seemed to enjoy it still more last night. Like wine, "The Concert" seems to have improved with age. It is just a tip-top, scintillating, rattling good comedy, superbly acted and ably staged.

"The Concert" is thoroughly wholesome. It is like a rare Thanksgiving dinner. You sit down, eat and drink and when you have eaten and drunk, lo and behold, there are no compunctions of conscience or digestion to follow. What you have had is plentifully digesting. Theatre Lee Dietrichstein's adaptation from the German is something that you don't run across so very often. It's a tonic worth trying.

To see Gabor Arany, the stage musical genius, who needs the adoration of the women to help him along with his melodies, was like meeting somebody worth while. You don't exactly think of going up and shaking his hand, but you DO feel that he's going to start something. And he does. And the telling of his serenade with a young admirer and their mutual disillusionment—all in good time—goes to the making of a mighty fine show.

If you haven't seen "The Concert" you'd better go. Those who have seen it are certain to go again.

National Theatre.

Heading the new bill at the National Theatre yesterday was Max's Comedy Circus, which proved to be a lively act. Elida Morris, a dainty comedienne, pleased the day's audience with her songs, and Sebastian, Merrill & Co., in astonishing feats of the bicycle, stepped into instantaneous popularity. A half-dozen other features completed the bill.

Howard Athenaeum.

The Girls from ..eho took possession of the Old Howard yesterday and supplied some spirited burlesque. Special vaudeville features were also presented.

Scenic Temple.

The new bill at the Scenic Temple yesterday was made up of attractive vaudeville acts and a list of new motion pictures.

Gaiety Theatre.

Bert Baker, author and comedian, arrived at the Gaiety Theatre yesterday with the Bon Ton Girls. Mr. Baker is a legitimate comedian, and in "A Peculiar Predicament" he proceeded to let everybody know it. Unlike many burlesque shows this vehicle has a real story running through it, and while it doesn't leave much to your imagination, it was found yesterday that laughing could be had for the asking. Naturally Mr. Baker did not work alone. Twenty pretty girls, posing as customary accessory, contributed an agreeable color to the performance. An extra performance will be given at 11:30 tonight for those who want to get the first election news.

Globe Theatre.

For lively entertainment nothing could excel Five Diamonds, who displayed remarkable skill in juggling at the Globe Theatre yesterday. This team will remain in the bill for a long time. The Globe vaudeville bill that surrounded this act were many features that were new to Boston, any of which will make a visit to the Globe a good investment in fun. New pictures were also shown. Election returns will be announced from the stage this evening.

'The Rainbow' Clutches Heart Real Sentiment in the Drama

HENRY MILLER AND RUTH CHATTERTON AT TREMONT.

BY NICHOLAS YOUNG.

If you have any taste for real sentiment in your drama—sentiment that is neither extravagant or tiresome—you will not be able to resist the heart throbs that Henry Miller brought to the Tremont last night in "The Rainbow." Call it the sobbing, tear-stained drama if you will, but you cannot forget that the soft and sentimental moments that made you swallow hard were as natural as life itself and well worth your wet eyes and any embarrassing redness that your nose may have acquired.

In fact, "The Rainbow" clutched your heart and reminded you that the drama of today does not necessarily depend upon vulgar people and vulgar situations to make it attractive. Sentimentalizing plays are naturally shunned by the playgoers, but that will not keep you from enjoying to your utmost capacity the little sermon that runs through "The Rainbow"—a sermon that dwells upon a lurid past and shows its futility. Mr. Miller, as Neil Sumner, discovered that a bright red past was a hard thing to dodge when it got firmly settled, and when it robbed him of the companionship of as pretty a daughter as the stage has ever produced, you could easily sympathize with the manly tears that he sprinkled upon the front door of his Long Island estate.

Intelligent Acting.

Conscientious and intelligent acting, both by Mr. Miller and Ruth Chatterton, made the parting scene so gripping that it hurt. The circumstances that led Sumner's divorced wife to take away from him the daughter she had permitted to come back to him after twelve years in France were distressing enough to make a successful appeal to your sympathies. It was a hard deal for both father and daughter. There was refinement in Mr. Miller's acting, in spite of his fast companions, and Miss Chatterton was the sweet, fluffy and altogether lovable young thing that you could easily imagine had stepped right off a Paris magazine cover.

Nothing could have been a greater treat to the eye or to the heart than the delicious scenes between Mr. Miller and Miss Chatterton—there was not a false note in the three acts. It was plain that the playwright, Mr. A. E. Thomas, was preparing to use the lovely daughter as a messenger of hope to the separated parents, and the author succeeded. The tremendous love of the child for both parents could lead to no other conclusion, although the mother, played by Edith Barker, seemed a trifle too cold and unresponsive.

Even more to be wept over than "The Rainbow's" moments of deep and unyielding sentiment, was the comedy relief that was injected from time to time. Most of this was unintentional and because Sumner's severe maiden sister, who seemed to be on good terms with both sides of the divided family, never appeared at her best, which may have been due to the impossibility of her position. Grace Closser Hale, who played the role, preached like a suffragette, but she shouldn't be scolded for the author's lines.

Do You Good to See It.

After all has been written about "The Rainbow" but one principal fact remains—it is a play of delightful scenes between Mr. Miller and Miss Chatterton, all of which draw you gently and willingly toward the two characters. Neither the sad nor the young leading woman wavered in their task last evening, and you could safely take the audience's behavior for it that the play's inclination toward sentiment was its most agreeable feature.

It will do you lots of good to see "The Rainbow." You may weep softly at times, and blow your nose to hide it, but you will not be alone in the struggle with your emotions.

'ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE' BACK

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," which is being staged at the St. James Theatre this week, was received with much enthusiasm last evening. Paul Armstrong's melodrama of a reformed crook, based on an O. Henry story, "A Retrieved Reformation," was eagerly awaited by theatre goers. Last night's production was enthusiastically received, as it was the first appearance in this city of the fascinating and thrilling play at popular prices.

The work of Theodore Friebus, and Miss Ethel Gray Terry was especially pleasing and they had to respond to many encores. Mr. Friebus as Jimmy Valentine, and Miss Terry as Rose Lane, the leading characters in the play, were ably assisted by Dudley Hawley, Burke Symon and Charles Abbe.

Harry Fearing showed his adaptability. Miss Beth Franklin and Miss Bella Cairns, who endeavored to institute prison reforms, lived up to all the good things said of them at previous performances, as did Hubert Pierce and William C. Walsh, who assisted Theodore Friebus with such success. Miss Marion Good and Florence Doherty also pleased.

Waldron's Casino.

Clark's Runaway Girls was the new burlesque attraction at the Casino Theatre yesterday. It was a lively entertainment. A midnight show will be given tonight, at which election returns will be announced.

Next Week's Bills.

"The Merry Widow" will arrive at the Majestic Theatre next Monday.

"Madame X," will be Mr. Craig's offering at the Castle Square next week.

Kitty Gordon, in "The Enchantress," will move into the Colonial next Monday.

Mr. Gadsden's company, at the B. F. James Theatre, will present the comedy, "Don," at five matinees next week.

Clifton Crawford, in "My Best Girl," will be the attraction at the Boston Theatre next week.

New Palace Theatre.

Big crowds filled the New Palace Theatre all day yesterday, drawn there by a motion picture bill of many unusual features. The big attraction was found in "Twice Struck Through the Heart," a melodramatic film from Italy that told a romantic story and used the war in Tripoli for a background. There were many other pictures on the program, all of which supplied good entertainment, and a new list of illustrated songs.

Orpheum Theatre.

New vaudeville and several motion picture subjects that had not been seen in Boston made up the new program at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday.

Shows That Remain.

Rose Stahl began her tenth week in "Maggie Pepper" at the Park last evening. "Little Boy Blue" is now on its final week at the Majestic Theatre.

"The Quaker Girl" began its final week at the Colonial last evening.

"Broadway to Paris," with Gertrude Hoffmann, entered upon a new week at the Shubert last evening.

George Arliss and "Disraeli" continue at the Plymouth Theatre.

Grand Opera House.

The Monte Carlo Girls began a week of fun-making at the Grand Opera House yesterday. It was highly spiced burlesque. A wrestling bout is announced for Thursday evening.

Hub Theatre.

The chief entertainers in the new bill at the Hub Theatre yesterday were the Three Buck Byrds, a trio of colored persons with singing voices.

HILDEGARDE COBB MAKES HER DEBUT

Miss Hildegarde Cobb, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Candler Cobb, was introduced to society at the home of her parents in Milton, who gave a large reception.

John J. McGraw at Keith's Tells Us All About World's Series

John J. McGraw is in Boston again, this time in a very different role from his last visit. He is at B. F. Keith's Theatre.

Last time McGraw was seen here, he wouldn't open his mouth—even when you asked him who was going to pitch today. But this time he strolls out on the stage, tells all about it, and then goes back and "draws down" a $1,500 a week salary.

Along with himself, Mr. McGraw features Fred Snodgrass and Christy Mathewson in his talk. Right off the bat, at the very outset, regarding Snodgrass and that $30,000 muff of his, Mr. McGraw says in that characteristically convincing way of his:

"I do not blame Fred Snodgrass one bit for dropping that fly ball that cost us the championship. He's a good ball player, and he will be with New York next season and help us to win the world's championship." Christy Mathewson, Mr. McGraw declares, is the greatest pitcher he has ever seen, and he never expects to see another like him.

Just before Manager McGraw upon the bill is Emma Carus—the jolliest star in Stageland, so the program has it. Miss Carus is always a Boston favorite and she has with her this time a new repertoire of songs, perhaps the cleverest of which is entitled "Love, Honor and Obey." A dainty and attractive act is that of the Six Kirksmith Sisters in a vocal and instrumental musical specialty that is extremely pleasing and artistic.

The balance of the bill includes The Four Musical Kings, the Steinert Trio upon the horizontal bars, Cunningham & Marion in an acrobatic talkfest, Williams, Thompson & Copeland in "The Rurdiar Union," David Schooler and Louise Dickinson in a miniature musicale, and the Juggling Burkes, expert club swingers.

POLICEMAN SAVES BOY BURNED BY WIRE

Patrolman John F. Dwyer of the Watertown police rescued Hugh Maguire, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Maguire of No. 65 Arsenal street, after he had been severely burned and rendered unconscious by a live wire on Pattee street. The officer hurried him to the office of Dr. Emerson of Mount Auburn street, where his burns were treated and he regained consciousness.

"COMMUTERS" AT CASTLE SQ.

"The Commuters" was presented by John Craig's company at the Castle Square Theatre last night, although new to a Boston audience, Mr. Craig's company gave the comedy a new flavor which the audience thoroughly enjoyed.

The play depicts in a wholesome manner the life of a well-to-do family residing in the country. Suffice it to say that the couple have a row. It is one of those rows that occurs in every well-regulated family. Wilson Melrose, as Larry Brice, was very pleasing in the role of the husband who was not hasty in forgetting his little days. His display of humility when, in the fourth act, he demanded an explanation from Mrs. Brice for remaining away from home until the wee hours of morning. Of course it was a practical joke on her part, and planned for the purpose of reforming her husband.

Mary Young proved herself a very attractive in the part of Mrs. Brice. Donald Meek, in the role of Samuel Fletcher, acquired his share of the applause. He was the guest at the Brice home, but as a bachelor was accused of encouraging Mrs. Brice to remain so late at the club. As usual he succeeded in getting into a great deal of trouble.

The ending is the part of every society comedy, very laughable and wholesome. The production is replete with odd situations and the audience is kept on the anxious seat until the unhappy Mr. and Mrs. Brice make up their differences. Mr. Fletcher, of course, is forgiven, but takes an early train for the city.

CROWDS SEE "QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER" AT THE BOSTON THEATRE

"Quincy Adams Sawyer," one of New England's "very own" plays, is at the Boston Theatre this week.

They are playing daily matinees; the Boston is one of the largest theatres in Boston; yet every performance seen from balcony and galleries filled to the "comfortable" if not to the "capacity point."

The quaint and homely story of the play and the adventures of Quincy Adams Sawyer are familiar. The story is simple and the scene is laid in a village near Boston.

WESTMINSTER CANON SPEAKS IN ST. PAUL'S ON GUY FAWKES DAY

Guy Fawkes Day, commemorating the discovery of the gunpowder plot of November 5, 1605, was observed today in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Canon H. H. Henson of Westminster Abbey, London, preached a sermon in which he declared the end never justified the means. He said:

"Let us do no evil that good may come. The gunpowder plot conspirators did not belong to the criminal class. They were men of regular lives and probably religious, but they were doing evil that apparent good might come, a most dangerous movement. No one has any license to sin, not even the millionaire class."

Every Day Is Election Day

Polls Busy in $40,000 Contest

Contestants' Supporters Registering Votes for Their Favorites Every Day, So Hustle!

By THE CONTEST EDITOR.

Today is election day.

The candidates for the highest office in the land can now sit back and await the results of the voting with the knowledge that no effort, no energy and no pains have been spared to rally to their individual standards the greatest possible number of votes.

And so it is in the AMERICAN'S $40,000 contest. But there is one distinct difference, and that is that every day is election day for the AMERICAN contest candidates.

The only time that any candidate for office of any character is just tied is sitting passively idle and calmly waiting for honors to be thrust upon him is after a hard, conscientious battle, knowing that everything possible has been done to rally together the greatest number of votes.

The days are slipping by, and one week from next Saturday will mark the first momentous stage of the contest. On that day the winners of the big Special EXTRA Cash Prizes will all be picked in this world's goods because of effort expended now.

Polls Close Soon.

And one week from Saturday marks the close of the polls for the first vote list—the big list—the list that shows to your supporters just what you have been doing and just how much support you are entitled to.

Next Sunday, the last before the close of the Special Offer, another page of candidates' photographs will be printed in the Sunday issue. Numerous votes have already appeared have been astounded at the results the publication brought them. The time to get that picture in if you haven't already done so is right now, today.

If you haven't a suitable picture come in and get an order for one which will entitled you to a sitting at the Otto Sarony Co., No. 146 Tremont street, Boston. If unable to call for this order, send for it by mail.

Just Read This.

Nov. 3, 1912.

Contest Editor, Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I am enclosing 125 votes for C. J. O'Brien of No. 53 Bainbridge street, Roxbury.

I had been saving the coupons right along but with no definite thought or person in mind.

When I saw Mr. O'Brien's picture in the paper today my mind was made up at once. Whether it was because his name is O'Brien or whether it was because he is from Roxbury, I can't tell, but here's wishing him luck and assuring him of all the coupons I can get hereafter. Respectfully yours,

S. D. GRAHAM.

And it's safe to say that if Candidate O'Brien takes the trouble to ask his newly found supporter for a 36-months' subscription or a 12-months' subscription that he will get it without question.

And so it goes—"ask and you shall receive." But don't for a minute expect that you are going to get anything unless you ask for it.

Modesty Handicap Now.

Modesty and bashfulness are delightful qualities up to a certain point and then they become a distinct handicap. There is absolutely no reason why any candidate should hesitate to proclaim from the housetops that he is a contender for the $10,000 to be awarded. You are not asking for charity and you are not asking anyone to give you anything. You simply ask that they shall read the Sunday AMERICAN instead of whatever paper they may now be reading.

And when you get subscriptions remember that your subscribers are getting the best that there is in Sunday newspaper reading.

But a combination of speed and endurance is a mighty hard one to beat.

And so it will be with you, candidates; make each day produce its regular number of subscriptions and don't let the day go by without adding to your credit a certain definite stated number of subscriptions votes.

Like Saving Money.

It's like saving money. If you set aside a certain amount each week, you KNOW that you will get ahead. If you just THINK about doing it, the chances are you will never get any place.

So, here's for a rousing finish, candidates—the time is short and every minute counts if you hope to make the most of your opportunity.

William E. Bailey of No. 31 Ohio street, Bangor, Me., is a District 1 candidate who will have to be reckoned with before the competition is over. He is carrying forward his campaign of subscription-getting earnestly and systematically. And this working combination plus endurance is absolutely certain to be heard from.

W. E. BAILEY.

Mr. Bailey, who lives at No. 31 Ohio street, Bangor, Me., is making things lively in District 4.

GIRL PICKET IS ETTOR WITNESS

SALEM COURTHOUSE, Nov. 5.—Victoria Wimeryk, a little Polish girl, testified today at the trial of Ettor, Giovannitti and Caruso that she performed picket duty every day during the Lawrence textile strike. She testified that she was on the streets before 6 o'clock every morning.

Victoria said she was fifteen years old, but she did not look more than twelve. She testified:

"I worked at the Wood mill, spooling. I struck on January 12 because my wages were cut. I did not join the I. W. W. like my sister Stella, who testified yesterday. But when she went out on the picket line I went too. I went every day until the end of the strike. I am working at the Wood mill again.

"I heard Mr. Ettor speak at City Hall. He told us to keep away from the soldiers and the police and that when they spoke to us we should just walk along."

Under cross-examination the girl admitted that she and others were asked to be witnesses at a meeting in Lesbeston Hall two weeks ago, and that William Harwood and Mr. Reed talked to her about the case.

Peter Sulnberg, fifteen years old, working in the Washington Mills, testified that she went on strike with others because her pay was reduced. She said that Ettor had spoken in the synagogue, where he told the people to keep their hands in their pockets, for bayonets could not be fought with bare hands.

Stella Stuka, a Polish girl working in the Ayer mills, told how Ettor had cautioned the people to make no trouble. She said she did not know the men who came through the mill on January 12, but thought they were Italians and Poles.

Miss Stuka admitted under cross-examination that William D. Harwood made an appeal for witnesses for the defence at a meeting a week ago Thursday at Lexington Hall in Lawrence. She said Mr. Reed, an investigator for the defence, was there also.

GUARD CHICAGO BANK WRECKED BY MAD PRESIDENT

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Police today guarded the Kirby Savings Bank, which was taken charge of by receivers on the discovery that William T. Kirby, president of the institution, had been insane for some time. The vaults were found to contain but $852.

A mob representing about $50,000 in deposits, it is said, waited outside the bank doors and shouted in rage when the information as to the amount of funds was given them.

The total liabilities of the bank are unknown. The $852 was made up partly of small change and stamps.

STRENGTHEN THE STOMACH

Complete Relief from Indigestion Is Possible Only by This Method of Treatment.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have this important advantage over other remedies for stomach troubles. They strengthen the stomach until it is capable of a good digestion. This is the most direct and certain way to gain complete relief every sufferer from indigestion wants. All the time you are taking the pills you are getting more and more nourishment from your food. This is important too, for you begin to feel better in every way because of added strength. You will be happily surprised to find that you are getting a hearty appetite; that you can eat food that you relish, without distress; that your headaches are gone; that you are no longer troubled with gas or acid stomach. It is safe to say that nothing will so quickly cure you of stomach trouble as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

The experience of Mrs. M. A. Hardy, a farmer's wife, whose address is R. F. D. No. 3, Carmel, Me., should convince you of the merit of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"I suffered terribly with stomach trouble. The attack came on me suddenly while I was in a run-down condition. My stomach was so weak that I could eat nothing but broth and gruel. There was a constant sharp pain through my stomach which was so severe at times that I could hardly get my breath. My stomach was sour and gas formed on it in such large quantities that it almost choked me when I tried to belch it up. I had no desire for food of any kind. My heart palpitated and there was a sort of neuralgic pain around it. I had dizzy, suffocating spells and sick headaches as often as three or four times a week. While my headache lasted I could not work.

"One day I read in the paper that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were good for stomach trouble and soon began taking them. A few boxes afforded me relief and I continued with them until cured. I have never had any trouble with my stomach since."

A free booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be sent upon postal card request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

New Beauty Attracts Astor

Miss Cannon a Clever Whip

Miss Adelaide Cannon, the Pretty Young Society Girl, and Vincent Astor, Who Is Very Attentive to Her.

COPYRIGHT BY HARCEAU

Society Interested in Attentions Of $100,000,000 Heir to Mrs. Frelinghuysen's Daughter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Miss Adelaide Cannon, the pretty daughter of Mrs. Theodore P. Frelinghuysen, is the latest society beauty to attract Vincent Astor, the heir to $100,000,000, and according to rumors that come from the neighborhood of Tuxedo, his attentions to Miss Cannon are looked upon as serious.

Young Astor has recently become interested in outdoor sports, possibly because Miss Cannon is a splendid horsewoman. She is especially interested in amateur photography, and takes her camera everywhere with her.

Mr. Astor was one of the judges at the races on Richard Delafield's newly completed track at Chester, N. Y., on Saturday, and with Frederic Foster, awarded the prizes.

Had he been called to present the blue ribbons to the prettiest girl his choice would probably have fallen upon Miss Cannon, to whom he was very devoted.

Miss Cannon is the daughter of the late Harry Cannon, who was one of the most popular cotillion leaders of his day. Her mother was Miss Elizabeth Thompson of Michigan. Miss Cannon is petite and blonde.

Cooper's New Discovery Used the World Over For Stomach Trouble

The tremendous amount of rush and hustle which is necessary to keep abreast of the times these days has created a condition of nervousness which is affecting the majority of people in the United States. That down-and-out, nervous condition is nothing more or less than stomach trouble, now generally recognized as the great American plague.

A man or woman in this condition can get little happiness or success out of life. They feel tired all the time, have no energy or ambition, and are gloomy, timid and despondent. They do not sleep or eat well, or feel well, and life, instead of being a pleasure, is more of a burden.

Are you one of these half sick, listless, tired, nervous people? If you are, you should know that there is a medicine that has brought back the old energy and pleasure in life to thousands who have tried it. The name of it is

Cooper's New Discovery

It has been pronounced the greatest medicine ever sold to the public. Cooper's New Discovery is sold by all druggists, who will refund the purchase price if it fails to give you full and complete satisfaction. It will build you up and bring back your strength and vitality. You will be astonished how quickly it acts. The first few doses will convince you of its merits. 'CIGAR' CASH FOR G. O. P. WORKERS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 5.—William Manuel Peres Bowen, chairman of the Republican City Committee, declared today that a two-column broadside in the Providence Journal on letters sent out by Bowen containing $2 bills "to buy a few cigars" is all wrong.

He says that the inference from the Journal's article is that he sent money to voters, as voters, whereas he sent letters only to seven party workers whom he could not reach personally.

"Just as I told the Journal," said Mr. Bowen, "I sent the letters because I could not reach them personally and I knew they would have to have a little money for cigars and expenses."

The Journal is independent in politics, supporting Wilson on the national ticket, but splitting the State ticket and supporting the Republican candidate for mayor.

It is against Mr. Bowen, defeating him for the State Senate two years ago. It has cartooned him frequently.

The Journal's article began with this paragraph:

"William Manuel Peres Bowen, chairman of the Republican City Committee, was caught last night doing 'missionary work' among the voters of the city with two-dollar bills."

The Journal called it an "exposure."

Mr. Bowen was asked today if the Journal's story is correct. He said:

"Oh, no, it's all wrong. There's nothing to it. I'll tell you all about it. The whole thing is done for campaign effect at this time. It's simply a mendacious act to injure me by certain people in the Journal who don't like me ever since I refused to do some certain things a few years ago. They also don't like me on account of the stand I have taken in reference to several labor questions. They are taking this method to come out against me at this time to strengthen their own policies.

"The article I consider is highly libellous. I have been fooled this morning with telephone calls from my friends, urging me to take action, and there will be something doing pretty soon.

"Everybody that isn't a fool knows perfectly well that campaign managers and party leaders put out money to their workers for rallies, automobiles and other expenses.

"So far as the $2 bills I sent, I wish they had been more, but we have been somewhat cramped for funds this year.

"The printed story, that I first denied the charge of sending the letters, is untrue. They first called me up on the telephone and asked me if money was being sent out to voters. I said, 'Certainly not, so far as I know.'

"Then they asked me if I had sent any letters containing money to voters. I said no. I didn't know what they were driving at.

"Early this morning I was called out of bed and was shown the letter. I knew then what they meant and admitted sending them. I said, 'Yes, I sent half-a-dozen.' I couldn't remember just how many. They were all men that I knew and had been unable to reach. This man Whelden (who received a letter) was known to me and, so far as I knew, was a Republican. Of course, I never had an idea how he stood this year or that he would make the letter public. At the same time, it doesn't make any difference. There's nothing to it, anyway.

"Just as I told the Journal, I sent the letters because I could not reach them personally and I knew they would have to have a little money for cigars and expenses.

"What of it? Anybody that isn't a fool knows all about that. The inference the Journal gives that I am sending money to voters is highly libellous."

Ralph is now going around with the aid of crutches and it is believed he will be discharged from the hospital soon. It may, however, be a few years before De Palma will drive a racing car.

DEMAREST LLOYD SEEKS A DIVORCE

Demarest Lloyd, millionaire sight or nine times over, Harvard man, prominent in Boston affairs, clubman, yachtsman and "man about town," has filed suit for divorce against his wife, Mayme Fisher Lloyd, whom he married when he was a student at Harvard.

Mrs. Lloyd was said at the time to have been an actress. She is a beautiful woman, slender and statuesque of figure, with rich brown hair and a southern piquancy of feature. She was a Kentucky girl when Lloyd wooed and won her.

Mystery surrounds the suit, which has caused a tremendous sensation in Back Bay society. The two lived for years at No. 9 Brimmer street, then moved to No. 8 Gloucester street. A short time ago Mr. Lloyd transferred his belongings to a Boston hotel, and the divorce suit followed.

Up to the time of the open break between the two, however, they were supposed to be devoted and absolutely happy together.

It is known that Lloyd makes staintory charges against his wife. But in accordance with the law, the papers have been impounded until a preliminary hearing has been held and the correspondent notified of the charges. The notice has been made, or is to be made, according to papers on file at the Suffolk County Clerk's office, by registered letter, returnable in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd have denied themselves to all callers save the most intimate friends, since the papers were filed. Mr. Lloyd's office is at No. 15 State street. Mrs. Lloyd is still living at the house at No. 8 Gloucester street.

Lloyd, who was born in Chicago, February 19, 1884, is connected with one of the most prominent families of that city. His father, Henry Demarest Lloyd, who died in 1903, was one of the most prominent writers of this country on subjects of economic interest.

SIX-DAY STARS BREAK RECORDS

The thirteen bike teams will be off in the six-day race again this afternoon, at 4 o'clock and continue until 2 o'clock tomorrow morning. The racing yesterday was of the best, and the men are now miles ahead of the record for the track. It is expected that there will be some sensational racing before the day is over.

The result of the first ten hours of racing was as follows:

	Miles.	Laps.
Clarke-Hill	239	9
Fogler-Morse	239	8
M. Bedell-J. Bedell	239	8
Root-Hehir	239	8
Fye-Perchiest	239	8
Weis-Hitten	239	8
Krebs-Johns	239	8
Ryan-Thomas	239	8
Drobach-Lawrence	239	8
Cameron-Magin	239	8
Dietenbacker-Carmen	239	8
Lotin-Gardellini	239	8
Walthour-Collins	239	6

Jimmy Morgan started the fun-making yesterday afternoon, when he tried to steal a lap on the field. The Chelsea plugger caught the other riders napping and was soon leading by over a quarter of a lap. Joe Fogler then took up the burden and did some great sprinting, but he was unable to get away from the other contestants.

One of the features of the evening was the fine work of Gardellini, the Italian rider. He jumped the field in several occasions, but was forced to return to the fold when the rest of the pedders set chase after him.

Andover Favorite Over Exeter Boys in Annual Game

EXETER, N. H., Nov. 5.—The Exeter eleven will receive only two more serious workouts before the Andover game. This afternoon and tomorrow, behind locked gates, the attack which the Exeter boys will spring on Andover will be thoroughly tried out. During the balance of the week, Coach Langer will give the squad only enough work to keep them in the pink of condition for Saturday's struggle.

Coach Ziegler is being assisted by Howard and Ted Jones, the famous Yale gridiron stars. Ted has charge of the backs, while Howard Jones is drilling the ends. The line will work under the eye of Coach Ziegler himself.

The three cripples, Captain Kelley, Quigley and Dunn, are back in the game, and will be in condition to start against Andover. They appeared on the gridiron yesterday and were given a light workout.

Andover is a favorite with the betting fraternity, but the odds have been reduced from 2 to 1 to 2 to 2 as a result of Exeter's decisive win over the Penn Freshies. Weakened in the team, with the loss of Captain Kelley, Dunn and Quigley, the eleven displayed a powerful attack and an invulnerable line.

Exeter's big fault, which no amount of coaching has seemed able to wholly eradicate, has been a tendency to fumble, which if it crops up against Andover may prove fatal. The occasional flashes of power displayed by the eleven shows that Exeter has plenty of strength, once it succeeds in getting started.

BEST TEAM WON WORLD SERIES,' SAYS M'GRAW

By L. R. MURDOCH

Johnny McGraw says that the "best team" won the world's championship.

Too may think that it hurt McGraw to tell the truth to Boston. But it didn't.

As a matter of fact McGraw, being a good judge of baseball, as you might guess, feared before the World's Series that the best team might win in four or five games. When "Buck" O'Brien made his historic balk, McGraw must have felt like you and I do whenever we pick up hundred-dollar bills on the sidewalk. He had feared that he was destined to lose in five games; the balk and it consequences delayed the decision to seven decided games.

"I have often been asked whether I thought that the Red Sox won on their merits," said McGraw, after his first day's experience in vaudeville at Keith's house. "I am frank to say that the best team won the world's championship. If they had not been the best team they could not have won. Naturally, I should be expected to plug for my own team. But they had opportunities enough to win, and they failed. The Red Sox had the same opportunities and they took advantage of them."

A Tribute to Mathewson.

McGraw had one regret to express. It was for Christy Mathewson, as might be expected.

"I don't blame anybody for our defeat," he said. "As I said, we had opportunities enough to win, but we didn't. But I do feel sorry for Christy Mathewson. He pitched three games in which but one earned run was made against him. Those three games were the best—in my opinion —that he had ever pitched. And, after twenty-three years in baseball, I confidently believe that Christy Mathewson is the best man who ever pitched the game."

Wagner the Boston Hero.

McGraw believes that "Heinie" Wagner was the hero of the 1912 world series. "My own opinion," he said, "is that Wagner did more to win the championship of 1912 than any other player. 'Time after time' he had chances to win the game for our would only fail. It was just at those times that Wagner did not fail. He headed off our best efforts.

"Next to Wagner, I should say that Speaker was the most player in the series. He is one of the best outfielders in the history of baseball, just as Heinie Wagner is one of the best all-around players in the game today.

Speaker is practically an infielder. I used to watch him move around in the outfield, trying to size up our play, and when he stationed himself anywhere I knew that he had succeeded in sizing up what we intended to do. Speaker is a wonderful outfielder, but he plays the game as if he were an infielder. He is one of the greatest players the game has ever known.

"But it is hard to single out stars. The whole Red Sox team—Jake Stahl and all the rest of them—played a wonderful game against the remarkable pitching that we had. I might pick out Bedient, for instance. That lad, playing his first World's Series and pitching his first year in the big leagues, did a wonderful bit of work against us."

Snodgrass Will Stay.

McGraw showed that he was not "sore on" Fred Snodgrass, whose muff of Engle's fly in the tenth inning of the deciding game of the series opened the door to Boston's triumph.

"I do not lay our defeat to Snodgrass," he said. "I have no hard feeling against him. I want to tell you that Snodgrass will play on the Giants' team in 1913, and I have hopes that he will help us win another championship.

"In the World's Series my team played some good baseball. The man who did better work than any of the others was Herzog. Next to him, I think, comes Murray. But I have to take my hat off to Mathewson, after it's all over. I will repeat that I think 'Matty' pitched the best three games of ball ever twirled in the history of the game."

McGraw opened at Keith's yesterday with a sketch entitled "Inside Baseball." He told a bunch of baseball stories, with Bozeman Bulger "on the side lines," coaching. They were bully good stories, but so "inside baseball" was divulged by the "Napoleon of Baseball."

What is "Inside Baseball?"

"Inside baseball?" he said after his first performance. "Why, the best definition or 'inside baseball' I ever heard came from Tom McCarthy of Boston, after the game. 'Tom said that all the inside baseball he had ever known was to get the ball inside of your hands, 'because,' said Tom, 'if it goes outside it's gone too far and too fast to ever do you any good.'"

The vaudeville game does not yet sit lightly upon McGraw's shoulders. "I'm afraid that I might quit, only I was signed up before I realized what the game was," he said. "Maybe we made a mistake."

"Never," said Bedient. "We never did a better job than when we signed you to play vaudeville."

McGraw had an informal reception last night at the Boston Athletic Association, between performances. At both opening shows at Keith's he made a "hit" when he declared that the most sportsmanlike crowds he had ever seen in his twenty-three years of baseball were the throngs who saw the World's Series games at Fenway Park. He added that he sincerely believed that Stahl's team was the greatest that had ever played baseball and that the Red Sox of this year showed that it had better baseball in its power than it had ever shown, particularly in this championship series.

McGraw believes that "Honus" Wagner is the greatest man who ever played baseball.

"Better than Ty Cobb?" he was asked.

"Yes, because he's an infielder," said McGraw. "I would rate an infielder in preference to an outfielder, of course."

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

Melville E. Webb, Jr., writing his interesting football comment in the Globe of yesterday, says:

"In all the comments made on the game played at Cambridge Saturday, no player, coach or expert had a more interesting word to say than Huntington Hardwick, the Harvard halfback, who was in the game all afternoon long, and who scored the Crimson's only touchdown.

"Hardwick was playing his first big varsity game and his impressions were those of a keen, manly boy whose whole heart was in the game and whose impressions any football fan would be glad to read about."

I heartily agree with you, Mel. I read all the experts' stories in all the Sunday newspapers. I had to—and none was more interesting or told more of what really happened than the article written by Hardwick.

But there was another thing I noticed in the Sunday papers, and that was Hardwick was not given the credit in the various accounts of the game that he was entitled to for the great work he did; at least from the way I saw the battle. Leaving aside the wonderful performance of Hitchley with his left foot and of Felton with his left foot, and coming right down to the fundamental points of the game, there was no man on either team whose general all-around work compared with that of Hardwick to my way of thinking.

When running with the ball he made all a man could make against the cast-iron defence of the Tigers. And in the last few minutes of play he was irresistible. But the greatest feature of his work was on the defence. Time and again he was through the line tackling the Princeton runner before he could move. He was in every play. He did not make an idle moment for himself. And he was always in the right place at the right time. He seemed to have the "instinctiveness" of a Frank Hinkey. He seemed to know where the ball would go in every scrimmage, and if he couldn't get to the runner he was bowling over a charger.

I do not recall ever having seen in any big game any man who did more work and did it so evenly as Hardwick did on Saturday. It was the perfection of defensive play. And he seemed to be fresh when it was all over as he was when the game began.

It is always a pleasure to see an artist work. There are persons who go to Yale games to watch the evolutions of one man. There are persons who go to polo or hockey games for the sole purpose of watching the goal tender. It would be asking too much to suggest to any one who attends the next Harvard game to which Hardwick plays to watch him and him alone, exclusion of everything else. It couldn't be done. But you who are at the Stadium next Saturday, or the Saturday following, or at New Haven on November 15, are invited to take a little tip from father and cast your eyes now and then on Hardwick. There's a football player for you.

The Yale coaches and players who attended the Harvard-Princeton game en masse returned to New Haven with a decided respect for the Crimson defence. Fortunately, Harvard was not forced to disclose what the team has up its sleeve in the way of offence. The plays directed against Princeton showed nothing new to the Yale men or to any one else. It was the straight, old-fashioned kind of football. There were many plays that might be tried with the Crimson counting nine different attacks from this formation. But that meant nothing to Yale, because there are nine-teen combinations to be had from it. Nor will the Elis count be able to discover much of importance in the Harvard-Vanderbilt contest next Saturday. While respecting the Southern team and reckoning it one that must not be trifled with, the Crimson coaches undoubtedly believe the team will be able to go through the game with the tactics employed against the Tigers. The Dartmouth game may be different. But on that day Yale will be having its troubles at Princeton.

"I find there is no such word in the dictionary, but let it go.

KLEGAN TO INTRODUCE EUROPE TO BASEBALL

By BILL BAILEY

Richard Klegin, who hails from Sioux City, Ia., for the reason that every man must hail from somewhere, figures that the French have never been properly rewarded for sending Lafayette over here some hundreds of years ago.

So Klegin is going to repay the people of that country. And his method of doing it is to introduce them to baseball. Or introduce baseball to them, which is the same thing in the end.

Klegin is in Chicago in an attempt to secure some prominent semi-pro. players who will be at liberty along in April or May, when he will start two teams for Paris. Accompanying the thirty ball players will be two umpires.

When the invaders reach Paris all that will be necessary will be for the athletes to don the spangles and the tango the chest protectors. Klegin will have everything else in readiness. And he figures that he will soon be hailed as one of the greatest men in France. You see, Klegin figures that baseball will quickly become one grand and popular game in Paris and throughout France. If it is successful there he will take the game to other foreign cities.

Promoting His Business.

Promoting sports is Klegin's specialty. He went to France about five years ago and introduced boxing. He made considerably more than a dollar and a quarter.

He had such luck in Paris that he went over to Berlin. He had just as much luck in promoting matches there as he did in Paris.

But his luck didn't hold when it came to collecting money. The chief of police refused to allow the bouts to be advertised and the other authorities insisted that they be held at one of the parks.

They were. There was a crowd present all right, but the promoter says that the Kaiser and the Crown Prince weighed in on paper, while the lesser lights were quite willing to emulate the example of their beloved ruler.

Moscow, St. Petersburg and Budapest are other cities in which Klegin has promoted sports, including everything from boxing tournaments to marathon races. The fact that English is the only language that he speaks has never yet proved a barrier, so there's no reason to suppose that he will be handicapped in the baseball game.

"Why shouldn't we have international series?" queried Klegin. Why not, indeed?

Thinks Game Will Take.

"The French people will go crazy over baseball," continued Klegin. "To begin with, there are 100,000 Americans in Paris. Those fellows know baseball and will patronize the game during its early career there."

They'll keep it going until the Frenchmen catch on and then we'll have to turn them away. There are no better sportsmen in the world than the French. And the beauty of it is that there is no sentiment against an American game there.

"Baseball is played in London. They really like the game there, too, but refuse to become enthusiastic, and the only reason for this is because of their jealousy for any sport that is distinctly American. But once let the game get a hold in France and the English will come to it because there is so much rivalry between the people of the two countries that the English will do their best to outdo the French.

"Italy is another country that the game should thrive in, and after introducing it in France I shall carry it to Milan. They have a superficial knowledge of the game there and I have often heard them talking.

"I'm going over the latter part of this month to do the advance campaigning. I am arranging to have the squad sail in April.

To Open Season in May.

"The season will open in May. I expect to take over about thirty players and two umpires. I'm not looking for the star players of the big leagues because I realize that they are tied up by contracts. But I figure I can get some pretty good ball players from the semi-pro players in the larger cities who will be at liberty to play baseball in Paris this Summer.

"I'll give it a whirl at any rate. The French are excitable, sport loving and enthusiastic and I think a good baseball game will prove irresistible after they once catch on."

Dunlap Out of Tiger Lineup for Season

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5. — The Princeton varsity football team came back from a two-days rest at Asbury Park today. Only the players that actually took part in the Harvard game were given this vacation. All the players are in good spirits and fast rounding into shape for a hard practice today.

Dunlap alone of the Tiger warriors was seriously hurt. He dislocated his shoulder several weeks ago in practice, and watched the Dartmouth game from the side lines. However, Keene Fitzpatrick pronounced him fit for the Harvard game, but he was laid out again after a fierce encounter. Dunlap was Princeton's heaviest end, and has played on the varsity for three years. He is a senior, and must watch the great Yale game and his last chance to fight for his college again from the side lines.

There are several coaches with the team at the shore, and Princeton's great trainer, Keene Fitzpatrick. The applications for the Yale game closed last night with a huge enrolment. Yale plays at Princeton this year, and even though defeated by Harvard, Princeton expects to win by a close margin.

Barney Snyder, the clever Roxbury 105-pound amateur boxer, has been performing in rare style during the past few weeks. The Highland youth has a big following and his admirers believe that he will have a successful season. Snyder is a fast, shifty boy and is very anxious to get a crack at Johnny Lynch and Billy Lewis.

Huggins to Manage Cardinals in 1913

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 5.—Miller C. Huggins will manage the St. Louis National League baseball club next season, succeeding Roger Bresnahan, disbanded, according to an announcement of one of the directors of the club.

It has been reached an agreement with Mr. Huggins," said the director, "and while he has not signed a contract, he has agreed on his salary and will be ready to take up the reins immediately."

Huggins had a long conference with Mrs. Helen Britton, chief owner of the club, and her attorney. Huggins, when he left the conference, said:

"I have been eager to be a manager and I'm glad I have succeeded."

LYNCH TO STAY NATIONAL HEAD

By DAMON RUNYON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—That Tom Lynch will be reelected president of the National League seems to be a foregone conclusion.

The magnates may even make his term four or five years this time, for it has been demonstrated that the very short term is impracticable.

While Lynch was criticised for permitting Murphy and Fogel to go as far as they did during the past year, his honesty and integrity have never been questioned, and his personal conduct is a credit to the game.

One or two instances might be picked out where the head of the National League failed to display the dignity of office, as Ban Johnson, but on the run of the season he earned himself another term, and the National League cannot afford to abandon him now in the face of the Fogel affair.

Personally, Tom Lynch is a gentleman, which is more than can be said of some of his enemies. No one who knows him would venture to say that any action of his is ever guided by any but well-meaning motives.

Whatever criticism has been made of him was never on the ground of double dealing. It is a mere matter of personal opinion that he has given the New York club the worst of it, more often than he has the shade, but it was never from anything but a belief that he was right.

Coaches Drill the Green Team for Stadium Battle

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 5.—With only seven more times to practice before the game in the Stadium, the Green team were worked for over three hours, principally on fundamentals. Only minor injuries and bruises were sustained in the game Saturday, so all the men reported today.

Five old players and coaches were on the field assisting in drilling the team, and at least double that number are expected within the next two days. The coaches on hand today were "Hal" Rendall, best coach of the 1910 team, "Wife" Jennings, coach in 1901, and "Knick" M. Kennedy of the 1909 team.

Most of the practice was devoted to drilling the line on defence. The men are improving rapidly, and it is thought that with the aid of the new coaches the line will be fully the equal of the Harvard line. Captain Bigelow is also showing the effects of a whirlwind game. Dunbar was tried out at right tackle and showed to advantage at this position, he bids fair to displace Estes. He is a light but a hard fighter and a sure man on defence.

Hognett was again shifted to his old position at left half. He got away with several long end runs and played a steady game on secondary defence.

"Dutch" Barends, whose ankle was injured in the Princeton game, has reported again for practice. The coaches will work hard with Barends, as his kicking may become one of the most important factors of the Harvard game.

International Meet Planned for Stadium

The combined track teams of Harvard and Yale will probably meet the representatives of Oxford and Cambridge in a track meet at the Harvard Stadium some time next July, according to men close to the Harvard Athletic Association. Arrangements for the meet have not yet been completed but it is a well known fact that the athletic powers of the American and English universities have been discussing the matter during the past few months.

Harvard and Yale journeyed over to England a year ago last Summer and met Oxford and Cambridge in a dual meet. The Englishmen won out by a single point after a hard struggle. The Britons are now hoping to defeat Harvard and Yale in their own country.

J. J. Baker of Cambridge University, who captured first place in the mile at the last international meet and who by so doing earned the day for Britain, was recently in this country. He met Captain J. B. Cummings of the Harvard track team, Manager Walter Tufts and Professor Briggs, chairman of the athletic committee. They then talked over plans for another international meet. It is believed that a definite announcement will be made within a few days.

The Englishmen visited these shores last in 1909, when they were defeated by Harvard and Yale at Berkley oval in New York.

CONNECTICUT LEAGUE CHANGES IT'S NAME

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5.—At the adjourned annual meeting of the Connecticut Baseball League today the name of the league was changed to the Eastern Association and Pittsfield, Mass., and New London, Ct., were admitted to membership. The league is now composed of eight clubs, the others being New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, Holyoke, Waterbury and Springfield.

James H. O'Rourke of Bridgeport was re-elected president, secretary and treasurer.

Everett Challenged by Oak Park High

The Oak Park High School football team of Chicago, which is considered the strongest eleven of the Middle West, has challenged Everett High School for a game to settle the schoolboy championship. The local team has not yet accepted the challenge. The reason for this is because Everett has several important games yet to play in the Suburban League, and there is a possibility that either Somerville or Malden may defeat Cleo O'Donnell's charges.

Somerville High is represented by a sturdy band of gridiron warriors this season and is sure to give Everett a thrilling battle. Malden, on the other hand, was considered weak until Coach Callender got it defeated St. John Prep. by the decisive score of 40 to 0. When asked whether or not Everett intended to accept Oak Park's challenge, Manager Marks said:

"We have three hard games on our schedule, with Medford, Malden and Somerville, and until we have won these we will make no arrangements about a game with Oak Park High. The followers in Everett appreciate the strength of our local rivals, and there is a general feeling that it would be best to win our own title before negotiating with outside teams.

"Everett is now the champion of the East, of this State of Greater Boston. Our team has scored 329 points to nothing for our opponents. In Everett we believe we have a strong team, but we will centre our attention on our three remaining games and if we aim for outside contests to win them we will talk about a Chicago game later."

Valuable Beauty Hints by Elizabeth Risdon

MISS ELIZABETH RISDON.

THIS is Miss Elizabeth Risdon's thought of having to talk on such a topic. Fanny of 'Fanny's First Play' is a very young woman, and as shy about talking of herself as most English actors seem to be when they first come to this country.

During the course of the interview I admit that I did most of the talking; somebody has to talk on these occasions, and every woman likes the sound of her own voice.

Besides, I can tell you it is no easy thing to draw out the secret of her beauty from an English actress.

Miss Risdon put her hands over her face and chortled with glee at the very and she is very pretty, with traces of her Scotch Irish descent in her big grey, saucy face and earnest expression, despite the fact that age goes contrary to all the best known and most neglected rules of health and beauty.

"Have you found out what Bernard Shaw's idea of beauty is?" said I, with the air of the orchestra leader when he is vamping till ready.

"No," said Miss Risdon "none of my know. Margaret, the heroine of 'Fanny's play, a thin-faced schoolgirl. I think, as a vigorous young woman with dilated nostrils. That doesn't quite strike me as describing an ideal. Dimpled pink-and-white, I should say, if we must find out, but get back to Bernard Shaw. I've never read him. I don't

EXPERT SAYS THAT HARVARD HAS BEST ELEVEN IN COUNTRY

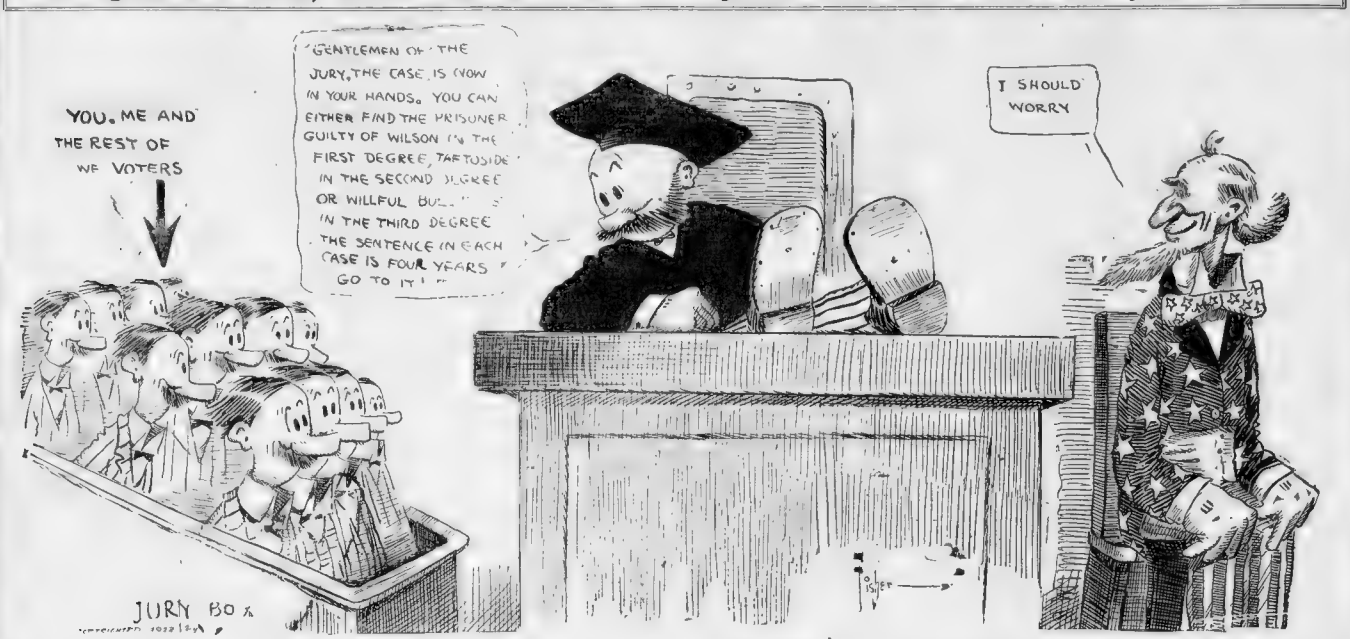
BROWN COACHES GIVE TEAM HARD PRACTICE BEHIND CLOSED GATES

All Arguments Are In; the Case Has Gone to the Jury! — By "Bud" Fisher



Vanderbilt Hopes for Low Score
Southern Rooters Hint at Win

By HOWELL FOREMAN.

At Harvard just now the Crimson gluttons are licking their chops and casting hungry glances at a team they are to meet November 8—Vanderbilt, the boys of the South. The Johnny Harvards philosophize thusly:

'Just after a jaw-breaking chew with Tat Pendleton a braves from Old Nassau, we will have one palate-tickling delicacy at this sweet morsel from the South, from whence all sweet morsels flow.

And with that the hungry demons lick their chops, preparing to roll the savory bit beneath their greedy tongues. But there are those from the South at Harvard who, after Vandy's recent wonderful showing, are hoping that the Commodores will interfere with Harvard's digestion.

Wendell's Crimson warriors whipped the Princeton Tigers to defeat Saturday, but the scores were made mainly by Brickley's running and kicking.

Harvard Won't Beat Best.

The Harvard eleven this year is a wonderful one in attack, with drive and power in the line, and speed and brains in the backfield.

But Vanderbilt, having such a team as it has, should certainly come to Cambridge with high hopes of crossing the Crimson goal line.

Harvard has just finished a tiresome, fatiguing game; the men are somewhat tired out. Certainly Haughton, as usual, will use his substitutes as much as possible.

The Crimson backfield this year is one which, by broken field running as well as by line plunging, is going to cause the pigskin to many big eastern goals. Brickley, Hardwick and Wendell! A trio of supreme worth.

Percy Wendell, that two-fisted demon line plunger who has made the All-American team by his crashing dives through lines supposed to be impregnable, has been playing his usual great game.

Brickley Star of Team.

His tremendous shoulder power gives him a powerful stiff arm that is capable of laying low the mightiest tacklers. Captain Wendell seldom fails when called upon a buck across for the last down.

Brickley is the sure, a brilliant end runner, who, once started, can carry the ball far and wide.

Hardwick is perhaps Harvard's most brilliant open field runner. He has a dodge, a twist and turn that confuses to a manner almost weird and uncanny. He is of great service in returning punts, where by his ability to get active he has make piles of spent tacklers, mystified by his magic dodging.

Harry Gardner, at quarter, is the weakest man in the backfield. He is not a great tackler nor runner. He is a fair good field general, however, which is about all needed with the five other stars.

This backfield, I firmly believe, is going to plough through Yale. It may fail to score, but a combination of three such phenoms—one a magnificent open field runner and returner of punts, and wonderful goal kicker, another a speedy end runner, and the third a dashing plunger—must leave its mark.

Vandy Has Fast Backfield.

This backfield, too, it must be remembered, works behind a wall of interference, a wonderful protection.

Coach Percy Haughton, in secret practice, has an interference dummy rigged up for the players. This is used daily. The men are taught to hurl themselves before any tackler, anywhere, at any time.

To this practice of unselfish team work must be credited much of the success of Harvard's backfield.

Vanderbilt, like most of the big Eastern teams, is this year blessed with a fast backfield. Harvard's ends, consequently, will have their hands full.

The ends of the Crimson while not as high in average as the backs, are good, safe players.

Sam Felton is an old, experienced veteran. He is a savage tackler and a great punter. Felton's left leg is being counted on to boot Harvard out of many a precarious position.

Hollister, another old end, was out on the field at practices, but he tells me he is still on probation.

Coolidge, Frothingham, Milholland, O'Brien and others are being groomed for the other end.

Harvard's line has been fighting all the year with a determined doggedness. The wall of defence is as stable and tough as a barbed wire fence. Composed of warriors like Hilchcock, Storer, Trumbull and Pennock, this defensive brigade can hurl back the attack of the hardest line plunger.

The charge made by the line is hard and low and the repulse delivered is severe. There is no trouble here. The line will fight, and fight well to the last ditch. It extends to see Vanderbilt and Harvard is three or four touchdowns, with a possible score for the McGuirnites.

Percy Haughton is not going to extend his team this week. Wendell and Hardwick will probably be out of most of the game. Several lineamen will probably be pressed for later use.

This custom has been consistently followed by the Crimson coaches. They pool on Vanderbilt for an easy scrimmage just after the carefree Princeton clash, and they are not going to work their players hard to roll up a big score on the Commodores.

Commodores' Hardest Game.

Vanderbilt, on the other hand, will be up against its hardest game of the season. Bill Hardage and Collins should every day be able to slip over several long runs.

If Haughton runs in some subs and then if Vandy pulls a couple of successful forward passes, a score for the Nashville men should result. There is reason to reason why Vanderbilt should not go away with some passes and trick plays.

Williams, as soon as Haughton sent in his subs, unwound five successful forward passes making a threatening sweep toward the Crimson goal.

MANDOT GIVES AD HARD BOUT

A Thrilling Story of "The Great White Way"

BROADWAY JONES

Based on George M. Cohan's Famous Play Now Running in New York

TODAY'S INSTALMENT.

By BERTRAND BABCOCK.

IN a very humble Jonesville home on the evening Broadway Jones was expected by Judge Spotswood, the wife asked:

"John, what shall we have for dinner Sunday? Do you think a pot roast?"—

"No, mother," said John. "You better go slow. The plant—the plant"—

He didn't finish. A glance between them was enough.

A young drummer, "breaking in," was trying to sell to Obadiah Smith a bill of goods at least as large as his predecessor had done. The senior partner of the Bazaar, Emporium and Mammoth Department Store, rubbed a shrivelled hand over a large ear absently.

"Well, I dunno," said he. "Demand is underlaking up—an' the stump speaker who was here last Fall said supply and demand was the bull thing."

At an upper window looking upon one of the most secluded and shaded streets of the town sat a young woman regarding the rows and rows of little homes. Her fair hair had been blown into little coquettish clusters about her forehead, but she did not even pat it down—sign of an effort at thought in a woman. Her gray eyes were latent; they seemed to penetrate into the interior of the homes she saw about her.

"Poor people—poor people—in the hollow of the hand of a—speed-hrift," she murmured, and closed the window.

Broadway Gets a Shock.

THE all pervading unrest of Jonesville found one of its focal points in the white frame house of Judge Spotswood. The closing of the gum plant would mean more to the Judge than to any other man in the town. He was local counsel to the company. The honorable dealings of the Jones succession had obviated almost all legal business outside of the town itself, or business that could not be handled as well from Jonesville as New York.

The judge was not a young man, and of latter years he had allowed his practice, except that that came from the plant, to dwindle. Mrs. Spotswood, matronly and plump, knew that her husband was worried, for had he not sternly warned her, apropos of nothing whatever, that "Bromide day at Smith Brothers' was absolutely no place for a lady?"

Hence it was on this evening of all Jonesville reeking that the musical efforts of Sammy, the judge's son, met with no encouragement. Sammy was thirteen and played two strings of the banjo he had bought "to make myself a future with, so's I can live in New Haven."

Even Sammy's appreciative remarks on great men whose youth had resembled his did not bring the customary nickel for soda water. Sammy, who worked in the chewing gum plant in the daytime, since he hadn't done well at school, was particularly insistent on this day that he would leave Jonesville when he got a chance.

"All the great men come from small towns," he reiterated. "When Abraham Lincoln was my age he didn't amount to much, either."

But the platitudes of the small and very fat boy only brought an order from his father after he had had his supper to hurry to his father's office. The Judge had left a copy of the Jones will there. So Sammy went off grumbling.

Judge Spotswood had met Broadway and Wallace at the station and had escorted them to the "Grand" Hotel. They had declined his invitation to dinner as they wished to "wash up"—the Judge's expression. Broadway had registered at the hotel as "B. Jackson," the Judge told his wife, as she set her "what nots" in order and rearranged the rather ugly furniture that had come from a New Haven department store. She wanted everything to be "slicked up" before Jones and Wallace arrived for the evening.

"Charley Gilroy, the hotel clerk, got off a good one," concluded the country lawyer as he narrated Broadway's arrival to his wife.

She began to laugh in anticipation.

"I had to laugh, too," drawled the judge in his gentle voice. "You know Gilroy's very witty. He's from Bridgeport."

"Well," demanded Mrs. Spotswood sharply.

"Well, what?" returned the judge, moving his fingers dazedly through his white hair.

"What was Gilroy's good one?" she asked.

"Oh, I see, Mom. I'm so worri—thinking of—Well, anyway, Broadway's friend wanted to know if they could have their supper served in their room, and Charley asked them if they wanted him to go up and feed them."

Mrs. Spotswood ignored the wit of the man [illegible] report. She wanted to know if Broadway had said anything about selling the plant, how he looked, if he really were going to be married as "old Jim Smyth" had said—

She couldn't learn much from the judge, as he and the two friends had not talked much. Broadway had merely said that he wanted to close up his affairs and get back to New York.

The turning from his wife to his daughter Clara, a pretty, dark girl of nineteen, the Judge asked her to go to Josie Richardson's house. Josie was to be invited to drop in at the Judge's during the evening.

Clara was just going to the door on her way out when the bell rang. She opened the door. A young man whom she recognized as Broadway stood there, another with him. Broadway asked for the Judge. Clara at the gigging age, tittered promptly. Then:

"He's waiting for you. Right in the parlor. Don't you remember me, Mr. Jones?"

Friendly Giggles

A return to prosperity had driven from the mind and face of Broadway all care. He allowed himself to give way heartily to his really friendly feeling.

"Well, what do you think of that. Why you were a little girl the last time I saw you," he exclaimed and presented Wallace.

Clara giggled and the naturally stern and serious features of Wallace relaxed. He gazed at Clara in a sort of dumb, wondering appreciation of a new element in his life, and then responded with the faintest approach to a giggle that Broadway had ever seen in him.

Lingeringly, Clara left the house, and lingeringly Wallace followed Broadway into the parlor.

The greetings were hearty and homely. Mrs. Spotswood and Wallace were soon on its most friendly of terms.

For the supposed grief of Broadway at the loss of his uncle Mrs. Spotswood was quickly sympathetic.

"It was all very sudden, wasn't it?" she asked.

A vision of Mrs. Gerard crossed the memory of Jackson.

"Eh?—What?"— he stammered, a suspicious eye upon Mrs. Spotswood's face.

Greatly Relieved

"I mean about your uncle," said the motherly soul.

"Oh, yes, yes, too bad," the relieved Jones answered heartily.

In her best "company manner" the two friends were asked by Mrs. Spotswood if they wanted a glass of milk and some cake.

Broadway and Wallace smiled a refusal, as into the minds of both entered many pictures in which they had not had cake and milk.

"Well, I'll make a pitcher of lemonade anyway," she said and left them.

Wallace and Broadway strode over to a picture of Broadway's uncle, which was hanging on the wall, while the Judge also patched his "third man" to the drug store with the injunction to "get six good cigars for this quarter."

The three men were soon seated at a table. From motives of delicacy, inspired largely by Wallace, the two younger of the group had refrained from going straight to the point of their business.

The Judge, too, did not seem eager to pass to a height from which the future of Jonesville would be seen. Watched earnestly by Broadway Jones, he reached into his pocket and produced, not documents, as Jackson hoped, but a flask.

"I thought maybe you boys would like a little drop," he said with a glance of timidity in the direction of the kitchen. "Don't say anything about it to Mrs. Spotswood. She'd raise thunder if she thought I brought it into the house. She's an awful temperance crank."

With smiles Jackson and Wallace declined to sip at the liquor, which they fancied the village druggist had made in its own cellar. The Judge slipped it back into his pocket. Then came at last to the issue.

"You know very few people imagined this boy"—he indicated Jackson with a jerk of his head—"would come in for it all."

With keen interest Broadway leaned forward.

"You know, Judge, I always thought the old gentleman hated me," he said.

Some Facts

The lips of Spotswood were pursed for a whistle. A moment later he said vigorously:

"No siree. Of course, he didn't like the idea of your not wanting to take up the partnership where your father left it off. He'd never have bought you out only he thought that you'd sell to some one else. I knew—I was in his confidence for years. He didn't want you to go to New York, either, for fear you'd squander your money, but he was really very fond of you—maybe he would be—never married, no children of his own. He used to feel sure that you never came to see him, and he always felt that the plant belonged to you. You know your father was the one who really made the success. He was the active man—the hard worker. If he'd lived there wouldn't be any Chewing Gum Trust today unless he was the head of it. Your uncle was willing enough, but he didn't have the capacity for the work. That's why you got everything—because your uncle figured your father was responsible for it all, and that's the real reason he never let it go to the trust."

Broadway shifted from side to side in his seat in his impatience, yet he did not care to ask for one question that was in his mind. Wallace, with a grim smile at this anxiety, came to Broadway's rescue with:

"It must be an immense fortune, isn't it, Judge?"

"The consolidated people offered twelve hundred thousand dollars for the plant and the trade mark," was the Judge's reply.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Up-to-Date Jokes

The following "unrehearsed incident" took place at a village cricket match in England. One of the umpires was the village butcher, who was very absent-minded. A wicket had fallen, and the in-coming batsman took up his position and made the request to the butcher umpire, who was talking to the bowler at the other end.

"Give me leg, please."

Turning round rather quickly, the umpire remarked:

"Very sorry, sir; we've only got a outdoor bill."

The diner thrust the tip of his knife into the yellow disc which the waiter had brought him. He held it up to the light and examined it, while the waiter stood by anxiously. Then the diner resolutely returned the yellow disc to its plate and scraped some of it upon his bread.

Only Gold

KLONDIKE was the scene of action, and the gold miner dropped his pick and stared, with bulging eyes, at the yellow mass that lay before him. His dream had come true, then. He had struck it rich. For a minute he was struck speechless. Then, like one mad, he gave forth a mighty shout.

His mate came running up to him.

"What is it?" he demanded, breathlessly.

"Gold—gold!" yelled the other. "Pure gold, and tons of it!"

His partner glanced at him with a cold and disapproving eye.

"Is that all?" he exclaimed, disgustedly. "From all the hullabaloo ye were makin' one 'ud think ye had dug into a drink o' butter!"

Household Hints

A clever young woman who needed syrup jug transformed the repugnant utensil which had been given to her housekeeping when he was a baby into a very good looking jug by sending it to a silversmith and having a lid and a spout attached. It was a very simple matter costing less than a new jug, and bringing into daily use a piece of silver which had long been discarded.

Minced or flaked cold boiled fish almost any kind will make a good salad with filling if seasoned well with a salad dressing. This filling is usually better used with lettuce, green pepper or cress.

More cakes fail from "guessing" at proportions than is generally supposed. If carefully and marked cup, and weigh accurately.

HEAR SUFFRAGE JOURNAL THEFT CHARGE NOV. 10

Boston Suffragists were much concerned today over the arrest of Parank C. Beetle of No. 32 Lenox street, Roxbindale, advertising manager of the Woman's Journal, the national organ of the Women's Suffrage Association, charged with the larceny of $125 from letters.

Although Beetle, when arraigned before Judge Wentworth, pleaded not guilty, the police declared that he admitted he had taken the amount. Beetle was held in $500 until November 10, when he will be given a hearing.

Special Announcement to Women Who Earn Money at Home

One Dollar will be paid for every letter contributed by Boston AMERICAN readers, and used in the AMERICAN, containing ideas helpful to those WOMEN WHO WISH TO EARN MONEY AT HOME. This department is organized to help women help themselves. It will suggest opportunities for money-making and will help those who wish to develop the ideas they are now using in their homes for increasing their incomes. Won't you please tell me what you are doing and why you are doing it, so that we may be of service to some woman who is struggling in the dark and who needs our help? Address MABEL BARCLAY URY, Boston AMERICAN.

This Department Will Appear in the Daily and Sunday AMERICAN

By MABEL BARCLAY URY

I HAVE had a very interesting suggestion made me by a few letters I have received lately. It is the thought that we learn, after all, only by trying.

Not a new thought, to be sure. But when a woman writes me that when she learned of an opportunity to do a certain kind of work, she was so doubtful at it that she was ashamed to have others see what she did, and that now she is planning—so has she grown to love it—to make it her chief occupation when her children are grown, I am reminded of still another saying: "Genius is nothing but an infinite capacity for hard work."

After all, we can learn anything if we just make our minds up to it. Many and many a girl has been married knowing absolutely nothing of housekeeping, and has grown into a notable homemaker. And so, if anyone who reads these letters thinks to herself, "Oh, dear, how I wish I could sew or cook or knit or launder well enough to make people want to buy my services," all she really needs to do is to change the form of her statement and say, "I will work until I CAN sew or cook or knit or launder well enough."

And if there are real will power and real perseverance and real concentration back of her declaration, it is impossible that she should not win out.

I know a stenographer who did such bad work when she started that she used to carry her waste paper home with her so that her employer should not see how much she had been obliged to destroy. Did she sit down and cry about it? No, she hired a typewriter—and practiced. Today she is one of the most efficient workers I know.

This is really not a sermon for most of you. It is a word of encouragement and advice for those who have not now your resolution and energy. And this is its message—others have fought greater odds of ignorance and inexperience than you can even imagine. If you want to earn money at home, find work to do, stick at it, and sooner or later it will bring its own reward with it in the satisfaction of work successfully and well accomplished.

Ornamental Bowls.

I have a friend who makes extra money at home by filling glass bowls with partridge berries, ferns, etc. She buys the bowls (such as are used for goldfish) for ten cents; then she has a glass cutter cut a cover to fit the top. That costs five cents more. Then she gets moss, tiny ferns with roots and partridge berries with roots. She goes into the woods after them until the heavy frosts come. Then she fills the bowls with moss, a little dirt and the partridge berry roots. She sells them for fifty cents up, according to size of bowl. She can sell them fast as she can fill the orders. They keep all Winter by watering them when the plants look dry. ANNIE H. PEABODY.

Covers Baseballs.

I have a home, husband and three children to care for. In my leisure time I sew baseballs. I can sew about fifty or sixty some days, getting one cent each. They bring them and take them a barrel at a time. It takes me about two weeks to do the 600 in a barrel. If I go out I take some with me. They furnish thread and needles. All you have to do is just sew the cover round and have them returned clean. It is very nice, light, clean work and I like it very much. Last month I did a little extra, making 1,500 in all. That brought me $15, which I am going to put into Winter clothing.

Fine Laundering.

A wealthy lady had some beautiful doilies, laces and embroidered pieces which were very much soiled, some of them being in constant use for over twenty years without washing. They were very brown and dry-baked. This lady heard that I could do up this kind of work and sent me hers to do. I washed, mended and ironed them and when all done put in a box with nice white tissue paper wrapped about them.

When the woman opened the box she was very much pleased. Those doilies have been a good advertisement for me. I have also laundered beautiful wash gowns.

Fine Laundry Work.

For one who has the knack of doing fine laundry work there is a steadily increasing demand for the expert. A small beginning at home may develop into a good, profitable business. I have reference to one home where quantities of lingerie, lingerie robes, waists, neckwear laces, fine baby clothes, bed linens, table linens, lace curtains, centre pieces, luncheon sets, silk hose, silk gloves, veils fine woolen shawls and sweater coats are being turned out constantly to look like new. This has been an extremely good paying proposition.

Brought Relief to "Shut-in"

When Hannaford was recovering from his automobile accident which kept him in bed a couple of months, he found great comfort in the telephone.

He had an extension telephone set beside his bed, and not only kept in touch with his business, but had daily chats with his friends.

The telephone in the house is a boon to the "shut-in."

If you have a friend who is convalescing, call him by Telephone, sometime. Such a little courtesy will surprise and please him.

DR. CABOT LOSES FIGHT FOR LIFE

Dr. Arthur Tracy Cabot, one of the most famous surgeons in America, is dead at the home of a friend, at No. 28 Commonwealth avenue, after a six months' fight for life. He was sixty-one years old.

He succumbed to an illness that developed last Spring. Dr. Cabot, who was a prominent Harvard man, attended the commencement exercises last June, but shortly afterward was stricken. He was operated upon by Dr. Maurice Richardson, at the Carney Hill Hospital in Brookline, The operation appeared to be successful. Dr. Cabot went to his Summer home at Canton to recuperate.

For a time he rallied, then began to sink again, and when he was forced to return to Boston in the Fall, it was seen that the end was inevitable.

The tremendous growth of the Massachusetts General Hospital during the past thirty years and Dr. Cabot's rise as a surgeon were closely linked. Upon completing from Vienna and Berlin, where he had pursued post-graduate studies after being graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1876 and receiving his master's degree two years later, he joined the staff of that hospital. A few years later he resigned but was immediately appointed to the staff of consulting surgeons. Many of the greatest operations in the hospital were in charge of Dr. Cabot.

The only public service with which he was connected and one in which he took supreme pride was as a member of the commission appointed by Governor Guild to draw up plans for the building of the State sanitoria for the care of consumptives. He was then president of the Massachusetts Medical Society and when the four hospitals were completed he agreed to continue his service as president of the board and trustee, positions which he held at the time of his death.

Dr. Cabot was known throughout the country as one of the most eminent authorities on cancer as well as a host of other malignant diseases, and his working knowledge embraced every known affection, including diseases recently discovered. His most marked characteristic was his ability to keep in the vanguard of the astonishing progress made in modern medicine and surgery.

He was born in Boston, January 5, 1852, the son of Samuel and Hannah Lowell (Jackson) Cabot, and was graduated from Harvard College in 1872 with the degree of A. B. Dr. Cabot left no children. He is survived, besides his wife, by two brothers, Godfrey L. of Cambridge, and Guy, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Perry of Boston and Mrs. Charles L. Almy of Cambridge, wife of Judge Almy.

The Final Editorial in the Campaign Written By Governor Wilson's Own Hand

The issue is now clearly made up, and goes to the people. I, for one do not doubt the verdict. The voters must make one or another of three choices. First, entrust the Government to the regular Republican party again, which always begins a campaign with promises of action, and then always, at the end, draws back and warns against change, dreading to attempt anything at all, for fear it should not satisfy those who control credit and whom it has so long permitted to act as trustees for the people in every matter of policy. Second, place the guidance of their affairs in the hands of men who are searching about for some new way in which to perform old duties, all along plain and imperative, which can easily be performed without the invocation of new methods, — for example, without shifting the whole energy and initiative of the law to the executive branch of the government. Third, go forward, without postponement or experiment or confusion, to effect the reforms which the whole country waits for, and which all parties profess to believe necessary, through the instrumentality of a great established and unbroken party, clear and explicit as to its purposes, willing to effect them by the ordinary processes of legislation, willing to be guided by the common counsel of the nation as a whole, the plain people with the rest regardful of every interest, the little as well as the big, because connected with every interest by sympathy and comprehension, and soberly determined to obey the voice of thoughtful men everywhere by a carefully considered course of moderate yet courageous reform. The mere statement of the choices is a prediction. We shall trust ourselves, and let the little groups of ~~discon~~ discoverers who would have us vest our powers in them learn, in their turn, and at their leisure, to trust us also.

Woodrow Wilson
